Great Gold Robbery One Smooth Operation

'I Loaded Some Gold For Them'

WINNIPEG (CP) — "We joked about the weather and the weight of the boxes—just making everyday small talk."

And before three TransAir employees knew what had happened, two men had driven away with an estimated $450,000 worth of gold in a stolen Air Canada truck. (See Page 13.)

"They definitely knew what they were doing," added Glen Shrimpton, 34, one of the three men who had unloaded a gold-bearing DC-3 aircraft after it landed at Winnipeg International Airport Tuesday night from Red Lake, Ont.

"I wasn't at all suspicious," Shrimpton told reporters. A ramp crew lead hand, he was in charge of removing freight from the cargo compartment of the aircraft.

C. E. Waters, 21, a TransAir traffic clerk, had been in charge of handing over the gold shipment to Air Canada freight personnel.

He had been in the cockpit of the aircraft "keeping my eyes on the shipment" when the two men drove up. They were dressed in ramp crew clothing.

"This was the first gold shipment I had to handle but everything seemed to be in order—like any other freight operation," Waters said.

"At first, when I heard the gold was missing, I naturally thought it was a slight

Guerrillas Attack Marines

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas Wednesday heavily engaged U.S. marines near Hue. The two marine companies were in an area long held by the Viet Cong.

Heavy fighting was under way at last reports from the area, 400 miles north of Saigon.

The U.S. 5th Cavalry meanwhile captured 33 guerrillas in caves near Bon Son, 300 miles northeast of Saigon. The caves yielded a cache of ammunition.

South Vietnamese forces broke two Viet Cong ambushes near Pleiku, 240 miles north of Saigon.

The Viet Cong attacked a Shell Oil Co. tanker 16 miles south of Saigon today, set it afire and forced it aground in the Long Tuo Ship Canal, American sources reported.

Details of the attack were not immediately available. It was not known if the ship hit a mine or was hit by fire from the shore.

One of North Viet Nam's new fleet of MIG-21 jets made the first attack by this advanced Soviet plane on an American aircraft two weeks ago, reliable sources disclosed today.

The U.S. plane, an unarmed reconnaissance U-2, used its superior altitude capability to escape the North Vietnamese fighter, the sources said.

Red Ships Held After Fire

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Turkish authorities Wednesday ordered two Russian ships to remain in port here pending investigation into a multi-million dollar fire caused by an oil leak from one of the vessels, sources said.

The fire, which did an estimated $3,000,000 damage to the waterfront district, was brought under control early Wednesday morning. Firemen were still patrolling the area to prevent a new blaze.

The fire is believed to have started when a lighted cigarette was tossed on an oil slick spreading over the sea from the Russian freighter Lash. The tanker was holed in a collision with the Russian freighter Krasny Okean in the Bosphorus Straits Tuesday.

Unknown Energy Sources Still Hidden in Nature?

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists Wednesday reported the discovery that two exploding galaxies far away in the universe are fantastically powerful X-ray sources so powerful they raise the question whether there are energy sources in nature not yet imagined by man.

The discovery, a historic "first" in the annals of astronomy, was announced by Dr. Herbert Friedman, chief of the E. O. Hulbert center for space research at the Naval Research Laboratory here.

It has been assumed for years that the ultimate source of energy in the universe is thermonuclear fusion, the reaction which lights the sun and other stars and made the H-bomb possible.

This may still be true. But by some calculations the energy emitted by so-called radio galaxies—two of which are now disclosed to produce X-rays, 100—1000 times greater than could be generated by the thermonuclear "burning" of hundreds of billions of stars in the brief period, astronomically speaking, of 1,000,000 years.

If these calculations are correct, where does the extra energy come from?

The problem is further complicated by the fact that X-ray power from sources thus far studied is 10 to 100 times greater than their radio power. The Milky Way galaxy produces X-rays at a power level 10,000 times greater than the energy output, including light and heat, of the sun.

X-ray astronomy is only four years old, an infant compared with optical astronomy, which is almost as old as civilization itself, and radio astronomy, which is still in its "teens."

Dr. Friedman and his NRL colleagues, Drs. E. T. Bryman and T. A. Chubb, have discovered about 25 X-ray sources with instruments fired above the earth's atmosphere by Aerobee rockets. Most of these have yet to be correlated with any visible object in the skies. Most of them also appear to be well inside the 100 billion-star Milky Way.

Wednesday's news was that an NRL rocket flight in April, 1965, disclosed two X-ray sources far outside the Milky Way galaxy.

The government to admit the existence of the Spencer letters.

First, he asked Justice Minister Cardin.

"Has the justice minister received any recent communication from Victor Spencer that would constitute further evidence in support of a judicial inquiry, as demanded by the opposition in this House?"

"No," Mr. Cardin replied. A few minutes later, Nielsen put a similar question to the prime minister.

"My honorable friend will be disappointed when I say no," Mr. Pearson replied.

Then Tory leader Diefenbaker tried, phrasing the question differently.

"During the course of the investigation, and during the last few months, has the government received a letter from Victor Spencer setting forth his side of the case and, in that letter, giving a great, great deal of information?"

Mr. Pearson admitted the two letters.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Commons had been given an interpretation of the letters by the prime minister.

He demanded that they be tabled for all MPs to see.

Mr. Pearson did not reply.

Outside the Commons, a spokesman for the prime minister said the first letter could not be made public on the ground of national security. The other one—the "Thank-you note"—may be.

Revolt Raging

New Ridings Irk Socreds

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Saanich MLA John Tisdalle confirmed Wednesday that a revolt is raging in the Socred ranks about the government's redistribution bill.

He said he thinks the only way the party rift can be patched is for the government to amend its own bill.

"That is the only hope for getting harmony back in the House," the Socred MLA said in a corridor interview.

Mr. Tisdalle declined to say how many backbenchers are against the bill.

But he was one of five backbenchers who had applauded opposition charges Tuesday that the government was discriminating against the Kootenays.

The others were Arvid Lundell (Revelstoke), Donald Robinson (Lillooet), Ernie LeCours (Delta) and James Chabot (Columbia).

A five-hour debate had been adjourned by Highways Minister Gagliardi Tuesday after Mr. Chabot—the first of the above five members to speak—told the House he could not support the bill unless three seats were restored in the Kootenays.

The bill could still pass by a 27 to 23 majority if it is supported by 13 New Democrats, five Liberals and five Socreds.

But it would represent the most serious party split ever faced by Premier Bennett since he came to power in 1952. And Mr. Gagliardi's adjournment was seen as a means of heading off the revolt until such time as the problem could be settled in the Socred caucus room.

Stands of the other Socreds who indicated opposition to the bill will not be known until debate is resumed on the second reading of the bill.

But Mr. Tisdalle said Wednesday that the government could amend its bill during third reading in the House and that

Cheering Guinea Told Nkrumah Returning Home

CONAKRY (Reuters) —

Ousted Ghanaian president Kwame Nkrumah Wednesday told a cheering crowd in the West African state of Guinea, "I am on my way back to Ghana."

Radio Guinea said Nkrumah, deposed by a military coup Thursday, was welcomed by his close friend, President Sekou Toure, and a 21-gun salute when he landed at Conakry Airport from Moscow.

Guinea radio said the two leaders drove in an open car to a large open-air meeting.

'VERY SOON'

His voice at times almost inaudible from emotion, Nkrumah told the crowd: "I have come here purposely to tell the world that very soon I shall be in Accra, in Ghana."

"I do not wish to give you

FORDENONE, Italy (UPI) —

An Italian army truck carrying 33 soldiers to their barracks plunged off a bridge into the river Tagliamento Wednesday night.

Eight soldiers were killed and the others injured, 13 of them seriously.

The truck, one of three carrying soldiers to their barracks at nearby Cervignano, collided with the trailer of a civilian truck coming from the opposite direction on the Ponte della Delfia (Bridge of Delight).

Rebellion Hits West Assam

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — The extremist Mizo National Front claimed Wednesday its forces have taken control of the Mizo Hills in West Assam and declared independence from New Delhi, an Indian news agency reported.

In New Delhi, government spokesman called the uprising an extremely dangerous situation.

Malaysia and Indonesia Summit Talk Subjects

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Philippines government is "taking steps" to arrange a meeting between President Marcos of the Philippines, President Sukarno of Indonesia and Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia to end the three-year-old confrontation conflict between Indonesia and Malaysia, Radio Jakarta said today.

The radio, in a broadcast monitored here, described the planned talks as a summit meeting and said it "should take place soon in Manila (The Philippines) or any other country agreed to by all the leaders."

It said President Marcos' special envoy, Modesto Farolan, now in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, discussing the readiness of Tunku Abdul Rahman to attend such a meeting.

Radio Jakarta did not say whether Sukarno has agreed to attend a summit meeting. But observers here said the fact that the news was carried by the official Indonesian government radio suggests the Indonesian president is prepared to attend.

The area, densely vegetated, normally is regarded as one of the most inaccessible in the world.

In reporting to Parliament, Home Minister Gulzari Lal Nanda said a series of lightning raids Monday night against the state treasuries, an armory and a state security forces camp was carried out by 800 to 1,000 armed Mizo tribesmen.

Pearson Admits Letters from Spencer

By RON COLLISTER

Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The existence of two letters from spy-case suspect Victor Spencer to the government was pried out of Prime Minister Pearson in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson said the first was received many months ago. In it, Spencer "explained his own improper conduct."

The second, addressed to — "to whom it may concern" — was received some weeks ago.

It thanked the RCMP and others for courtesy and consideration during difficult months, Mr. Pearson said.

The government was again pounded with questions about Spencer, who was fired as a postal employee for his role in a sensational spy case last year.

Both Tory leader Diefenbaker and trouble-shooter Erik Nielsen asked about the existence of letters.

Earlier at a secret caucus of the Liberal parliamentary group, Mr. Pearson had admitted the existence of the letters.

He had also tried to reassure party members who are concerned about the government's refusal to allow a judicial inquiry into the case.

If there was any kind of complaint from Spencer about the treatment he had received, there would have to be a judicial inquiry, Mr. Pearson is reported to have said.

In the Commons, Erik Nielsen tried unsuccessfully to get

the government to admit the existence of the Spencer letters.

First, he asked Justice Minister Cardin.

"Has the justice minister received any recent communication from Victor Spencer that would constitute further evidence in support of a judicial hearing, as demanded by the opposition in this House?"

"No," Mr. Cardin replied. A few minutes later, Nielsen put a similar question to the prime minister.

Mr. Pearson admitted the two letters.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Commons had been given an interpretation of the letters by the prime minister.

He demanded that they be tabled for all MPs to see.

Mr. Pearson did not reply.

Outside the Commons, a spokesman for the prime minister said the first letter could not be made public on the ground of national security. The other one—the "Thank-you note"—may be.

The Spencer case fired a lively exchange between Cardin and the New Democrat MP for Vancouver, Harold Winch, who had been out in Vancouver trying to contact Spencer.

Winch complained that he asked the RCMP from 11 a.m. Monday to 5 p.m. and they denied they knew where Spencer was.

Goldberg Nibbled By BBC's Rats

LONDON (UPI) — Arthur Goldberg, United States ambassador to the United Nations, stalked out of a television studio here Wednesday night after he was kept waiting by a film about musical rats.

"The rats were the last straw," a spokesman for the ambassador said later.

Goldberg was affronted because he had been promised weeks ago he would be the first guest on the British Broadcasting Corporation show, when he was to be interviewed on Viet Nam. The spokesman said Goldberg, on a tight schedule, had left a reception where he was guest of honor to appear at the studio on time.

After waiting 25 minutes, Goldberg walked out.

Ulbricht UN Bid 'For Reunification'

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — East Germany said in a memorandum, the contents of which were disclosed Wednesday night, the admission of itself and West Germany to the UN would promote national reunification in a German confederation.

East German membership also would facilitate the conclusion of a German peace treaty, the memorandum stated. It was transmitted to the Security Council members by Secretary-General U Thant with a formal application by East Germany for membership and a declaration of adherence to the UN charter.

ENDORSEMENT NEEDED
The council must endorse an applicant for membership before the general assembly may vote on admission.

The Western powers objected to circulation of the application on the grounds East Germany is not a sovereign state.

POLE'S HELP

The application was transmitted to Thant Tuesday by Bohdan Lewandowski, the chief delegate of Poland, as East Germany has no diplomatic representation in the United States.

EAST BERLIN (Reuters) — East Germany Wednesday night described its application for membership in the United Nations as a new and extraordinarily important peace initiative.

LEADERS OFFER
Communist Leader Walter Ulbricht, Foreign Minister Otto Winzer and other leaders conferred for several hours Wednesday on reaction to the application.

Afterward, the foreign ministry issued a statement saying the application was aimed at stemming growing danger to European peace.

It was an unnatural situation that "a highly developed state which has existed 16 years having all the attributes of a sovereign state" should not be a member of the United Nations.

U.S. Viet Force Could Hit 350,000

No-Sweat Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said Wednesday he has authorized an increase in U.S. forces in South Viet Nam to 235,000 men. This could be boosted to more than 350,000 without calling reservists to active military duty.

McNamara told a press conference another 20,000 troops have been ordered to Viet Nam, on top of the 215,000 now there. This was the first public disclosure U.S. armed strength in Viet Nam already had reached as high as 215,000.

McNamara also said the United States has the capability to send 21 more battalions to Viet Nam within the next 90 days, if such action should be required.

McNamara made the disclosures in connection with a report on U.S. readiness in which he said that despite stationing about 300,000 U.S. fighting men in Viet Nam and elsewhere in Southeast Asia "we are fully capable of meeting our commitments elsewhere in the world."

'OVEREXTENDED'
McNamara issued a report on U.S. readiness in response to recent press articles which he said "give the impression" that because of deployments in Southeast Asia the United States "is now militarily overextended and would not be able to meet other contingencies."

"This allegation, if true, would indeed represent a serious situation," McNamara said. "But it is not true."

The defense secretary said that "far from overextending ourselves, we have actually strengthened our military position."

Ever since October's abortive left-wing coup attempt, Subandrio has weathered this kind of abuse from anti-Communist elements led by students who have labelled him an opportunist.

Dr. Verwoerd's Stand

IN OPENING the campaign of his governing Nationalist party for the March 30 general election, Premier Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa has made it abundantly clear that he is willing to accept the continuing Rhodesian crisis as a major political issue within his own country.

For the past three months his administration has been violently criticized by both the opposition United Party and certain elements within his own party for not declaring South Africa's fullest and, if necessary, active support for the rebel Smith regime.

Despite these and other pressures Dr. Verwoerd has stuck to his narrow path of non-intervention in the affair and set a course pleasing neither the British Labor government nor the illegal government of Rhodesia.

Dr. Verwoerd, it will be recalled, did not hesitate to enunciate this policy he has so carefully followed almost immediately Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia announced his unilateral declaration of independence.

At that time he made two points: one, that he regarded Rhodesia as a British colony and that therefore the problem was a purely domestic affair to be solved by the United Kingdom, and two, that he saw no reason to depart from normal relations with the embattled colony.

Though to the outside world this statement might have appeared to be in conflict with itself, to many South Africans it made good sense, for by supporting neither side South Africa could not possibly be accused of interfering in the internal affairs of either.

And this, of course, is Dr. Verwoerd's whole political philosophy. By adhering to the strict letter of Article 11, 7, of the United Nations Charter he hopes to secure for all time the inviolability of South Africa's sovereignty.

Article 11, 7, of the Charter reads as follows: "Nothing contained in the present charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state, or shall require the members to submit such matters to settlement under the present charter..."

Thus, in effect, Dr. Verwoerd tells the world: "Keep your nose out of my affairs and I'll keep my nose out of yours."

Which might not be bad advice for a few other countries to follow from time to time.

Our Stars and Stripes

CIVILIANS (including Mr. Paul Hellyer) may be forgiven for being somewhat confused these days about things military in Canada because they (including Mr. Paul Hellyer) know so little about the armed forces of our country.

However when a professional Canadian soldier who carries the rank of major-general starts referring to himself as a "two-star general" things are getting sadly out of hand.

For the uninitiated, the insignia of rank of a Canadian major-general is not two stars. It is instead a sword and baton crossed and one star (or pip), just as it is in the British, Australian, New Zealand and most other British Commonwealth armies.

It is American major-generals who wear two stars — as any red-blooded Canadian CBC-TV watcher will know. The only commissioned officer in the Canadian army who wears but two stars on each shoulder strap is a lieutenant, which is a rank considerably below that of major-general, as even Mr. Hellyer knows.

It may be that Major-General W. A. B. Anderson, deputy chief of Canada's reserve forces, was just being facetious with his reference. On the other hand it may be that he was trying to tell us something that we should know.

Is he attempting to tip us off that he is expecting to be reduced to a mere two-pipper? Or is he just softening us up for a change-over to the American system of badges of rank?

The latter guess would seem the more likely of the two. After all, our air force is equipped with American aircraft; our army is armed with American weapons, and our defence policy is set by American politicians. So why not go the whole hog.

The Ironic Note

PHYSICAL bulk doesn't necessarily count in the front line where soldiers are concerned; the flyweight may serve equally well as the heavyweight. It does strike a piquant note however when the recognized pugilistic champion of the world objects to serving his country in this manner.

Mr. Camillus Clay had cause for concern lest his draft call would deprive him of the half-million dollars he scheduled for this month would bring him, but that is but part of the story and apparently his induction won't interfere should his title defence go on.

"Why me?" was his anguished cry when his name came up, which no doubt was a reaction echoed, albeit in secret, by many before him. The American GIs in Viet Nam can be excused however if they answered, "Why not?" He would be a hefty recruit in his country's cause.

Mr. Clay's chief objection has been intriguing. He is a member of the Black Muslims, "and we don't go to no war unless they're declared by Allah himself." One wonders if Allah declares himself in favor each time Mr. Clay steps into the ring.

Combat is combat, after all, and no inconsiderable mayhem takes place among the heavyweights when they put the gloves on with each other. Indeed a man could suffer more there than in the front line of military action.

There are others in the U.S. besides Mr. Clay who express dissent about their draft calls, but they are not known as champion fighting men. Like them Mr. Clay may have conscientious scruples about warfare, but unlike them he is a recognized gladiator of world repute. It is this that makes ironic his reluctance to serve in Viet Nam.

How about that, soup fans!

YOU wouldn't believe it and neither would I were men and women met all too familiar, but it was a picture of Coventry that sent me to Moscow two weeks back.

The connection may escape you, until perhaps I mention Peeping Tom (why couldn't his name have been Albert, Aubrey or Alexander?) He was a spy, remember.

Not much of a spy, really. He only took a little peep, and he was caught out. I have always thought he got a rough deal. If there hadn't been a counter-spy also peeping through the shutters to betray him he'd have got off scot free.

The thing about espionage, you see, is not to get nabbed. In the result, as you know, poor Tom suffered a severe drop in his social status. His was the height of bad form.

The form isn't quite so bad nowadays, for espionage, which has a semantic aura not quite so dramatic in its impact as the bare word "spy," is as common nowadays as the sound of music, upper or lower case.

In the national sense countries have always had spies, of course. But for long found out they went to their fate unwept, unhonored and unsung. It was left to authors like E. Phillips Oppenheim (I am exposing the eyes of my who-dunnits), or these nights, to television programs (Robert Goulet in "Blue Light"), to ring them with glamor and depict them as heroes.

Officially they didn't exist, although their operations are not exactly as sub rosa as once they were. Espionage and counter-espionage is conceded to be a normal part of the security measures devolving upon governments because of the international unease that pervades the world.

It is necessary to know what the other camp is up to in order to offset any dangers.

Even so governments are reluctant to admit the fact and reveal the identity of their Peeping Toms. The Soviet Union however has broken the pattern. It has bestowed its highest award, the Order of Lenin, upon one, Colonel Abel, openly acclaimed for repatriation for a cited 30 years as an intelligence agent.

The colonel committed the major error of a spy true enough—he was caught. But 30 years at the job was no doubt enough to make amends for his final mistake.

It may be therefore that secret agents are coming into their own, and their spying activities no longer considered as of ill-repute. One's outlook depends on whose country the spy represents, of course, but espionage is undoubtedly a most dangerous vocation. Perhaps after all he should not, like Coventry's Tom, suffer the slings and arrows of social dissent.

For the western world too has its spies, and heroic chaps some of them must certainly be. Nor have they, like Robert Goulet, blue light to ensure they don't come to harm as each episode is concluded.

Ottawa Offbeat

Mr. Diefenbaker Stays

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

SO that's that. John Diefenbaker stays. Indefinitely. Or, as the always controversial Conservative leader himself so flatly put it:

"I have no intention of retiring, period." And is THAT causing some sudden changes in political pace and direction? All the way there, you ought to be able to hear the clashing of gears here in the capital as who-knows-how-many politicians—both Conservative AND Liberal—take another look at their own personal parliamentary road maps.

Up until "The Chief" laid it out on the line, practically everybody was making plans on the basis that soon he would be on his way.

That was the way everybody seemed to have heard it after last year's extraordinary meeting of the Conservative national executive that came within only a vote or two of formally asking Dief to take his leadership leave.

There were even statements—by such close friends as former defence and veterans minister Gordon Churchill and presumably authorized by "The Chief" himself—that after "a decently dignified interval," as it was termed, he would step down with full honors.

It was to have been a great and glorious occasion, both dramatic and sentimental, when "The Chief" doffed his political and party war-bonnet.

Dief was—and still is—the heart of the political and parliamentary matter.

When he went, so Prime Minister Pearson was supposed to go, and the race for the two party leaderships would be on.

And when they changed, there would be switches all up and down the party lines, with some moving up to positions of cabinet and shadow-cabinet power, and others moving down.

It would have been a new and different government and Parliament, and who knows, perhaps even a different nation.

But it's all off.

Dief has told, first the Conservative national executive and then the press and public that he's sticking.

He said it two different ways, but it meant the same.

The first statement: "I'm not retiring, now or later."

He scratched that one because he didn't like the "later," since he felt it invited the question of how much later is later.

So he made it just the straight: "I have no intention of retiring, period."

And everybody knows he means it.

What about Davie Fulton and George Hees, the front-runners in what was to have been the race for the succession?

Do them no harm, he beamed in answer to that question, to get a little House of Commons experience under their political belts.

But as former members of his cabinet, Fulton with 18 years and Hees with 10 in Parliament didn't they have more than ample experience?

No, says Dief, explaining that both have been out of Parliament for nearly three years while great changes were taking place. So they could wait awhile.

So could Trade Minister Winters, Defence Minister Hellyer and Finance Minister Sheppard, for the Pearson leadership. They'd have to, for with Dief staying, Prime Minister Pearson wouldn't be going, so everything would be holding still.

Talking to Dief, you know what he says: "I have no intention of retiring, period," he means he has every intention of remaining indefinitely, period.

Knowing him over his 26 news-making parliamentary years, you know that politics and the Commons are his very life.

Actually, you couldn't fit him into another scene. He'd die. Probably of boredom, if not of frustration.

Right now he's having the time of his 70-year life.

He plays the Commons as if it were a concert grand and he one of the great piano masters. And he glories in it. You can see his almost physical enjoyment of it—the same kind of glow of great good bodily feeling that a star athlete displays.

Over the years there have been three Diefs.

First the lone wolf, "Fighting John Diefenbaker," as he was known in his early Opposition days.

Then the prickly prime minister, over-tense, super-sensitive and every-edgy, withdrawing into a destructive self-imposed isolation.

And now "The Chief," the Old Curmudgeon, almost lovable. Happy, relaxed, having a gloriously good time, confident without being cocky, already a character and fast becoming a legend in his own parliamentary time.

And here, to stay, from now until they carry him out.

Rights Protected

WITH reference to the article on page 16 of the Feb. 25 paper regarding "Peace Group Angry" and several letters which have appeared in the past few weeks, I would like to add my voice to what I hope will be a flood of "rebuttals" to the charges which have been made by the Peace Action League.

It would appear that this group are afraid that if relegated to Speaker's Corner in Beacon Hill Park nobody would come to hear them, let alone stop to listen to them — and they are very likely right in that! But no, they don't want to take that chance! Rather, in an undemocratic manner, they want to cram their views down the throats of people who would prefer to view the beauty of our square in the silence which is afforded and to which they are entitled.

The aldermen of this city deserve much credit for taking a firm stand to protect the citizens from "having" to listen to the views of a minority group—while still protecting the democratic rights of the group by allowing them use of the proper and recognized area.

I will volunteer as a committee of one to go and listen to their views if only to assure them that while my views are entirely opposed, they will at least not be entirely alone.

DEMOCRACY FOR ALL.

Senate Choices

It was with great disgust that I read of the ten appointments made by Mr. Pearson to the Senate. These men will receive a guaranteed income to the age of 75 of $15,000 per annum plus travelling and other expenses and a big whacking pension when they retire. This is taxpayers' money—yours and mine—not Liberal slush funds.

With all the illustrious Canadians available, Mr. Pearson has stooped to cheap politics and reward party workers, many of them rejected more than once by the voters, and still we call ourselves a democracy.

When life peerages were instituted in Great Britain the leaders of the political parties made nominations of merit from all parties and did not, like Mr. Pearson, restrict themselves to rewarding only the faithful of their parties.

Mr. Pearson has always tried to hide under the cloak of being a statesman and not a politician. After his recent action of nominations to the Senate such a pretence will not be believed by any except the most foolish.

If it is necessary to have an Upper House, and I doubt the necessity, I strongly urge that, as a democracy, the members of that House should be elected and thereby eradicate the present system of nomination by the prime minister of the party in power. I do not know of any country which boasts of being a democracy and which would tolerate our system.

Tired Stuff

Mr. James L. Cryer's parroting of the domino theory (Colonist letters Feb. 26) as justification for American policy in Viet Nam is tired old stuff indeed. His paper argument collapses around a false assumption.

Surely it is now abundantly clear to those who retain any semblance of objectivity on the issue that the enemy which the United States and the successive power elites at Saigon have been fighting for the past ten years is not "Communism."

It is a "regression" but indigenous revolution based on the legitimate aspirations of a long-suppressed people.

Whether or not superior financing and weaponry succeed in subduing these aspirations in Viet Nam, nationalist rebellions in other countries will continue to flare and subside in accordance with specific regional conditions.

The bogey of international Communism is no longer a monolithic octopus. It's a moribund horse. Let's stop flogging it.

Rhodesia

In your article on Rhodesian morale, Feb. 26, your informant asserts that tax-paying white Rhodesians could not afford the number of schools and teachers required for the adequate education of the colored children.

The great disparity between the amount spent to educate a white child and the amount allotted to educate a colored child is well known, and information is easily available.

However, why should the 200,000 or so have to pay the whole cost of education and adequate sanitary and medical services for the entire population of 4½ million? That is like expecting about two-thirds of the population of Victoria to pay for the whole of B. C., Alberta, and perhaps part of Saskatchewan. Nor is it necessary.

In the United States and Canada there is foreign aid available in both money and trained personnel, and in the prevailing state of both her educational and public health deprivation Rhodesia has the greatest claim on foreign aid.

As we know, she is already accepting it.

Critical as the need for adequate educational services is, there is even greater need for medical and sanitary rehabilitation. According to recently published information, about 30 per cent of the colored Rhodesians are afflicted with bilharzia.

This disease is from a parasite hosted by snails that infest streams and swamps in the unsanitized non-white areas. The disease causes depleted vitality, chronic severe headache, and is often fatal if not treated. It is too prevalent for doctors to cope with, and very few are willing to do so.

Treatment is very expensive. However, bilharzia has its political advantages: It obviates a population explosion by maintaining a balance between a high birth rate and a high death rate. And there is very little geriatric problem. As one white woman put it, "They die before they're old." So, why bother to educate them?

Perhaps in the interest of Rhodesia's boasted political stability it might be as well to leave things as they have been for the last 50 years; to let sleeping dogs lie... or die. But it would seem that too many of the rest of us are thinking of Rhodesia only in terms of the 200,000 Rhodesian number about 4½ million, and Rhodesia is in Africa, not Europe.

Car Insurance

It has been said that people think in herds — go crazy in herds — and come back to their senses slowly and one by one. All this because most people will accept any sort of story without using their own God given brains to do a bit of thinking and investigating for themselves. I sincerely hope the people of B.C. don't fall for that compulsory auto insurance plan commonly described with the much quoted phrase "just like Saskatchewan has."

The Saskatchewan plan was based on selling car insurance at less than the true cost and spreading the balance around. On this basis non-owners who couldn't afford a car are forced to contribute.

It was also a political gimmick patterned to allow the NDP to tour the length and breadth of Canada extolling the phony virtues of a plan which is neither wonderful or cheap as made out to be. The NDP are incessantly criticizing so-called monopolies. Yet this party secretly desires to run its own monopolies. They are not satisfied with just monopolies they want compulsory monopolies. The reason is obvious.

A compulsory monopoly like car insurance does away with competition by competition, be-fuddles the public and covers up a deficiency in efficiency so common to all government operations.

Frankly, I wouldn't let the NDP run a peanut stand for me. I spent eight years in Saskatchewan under the CCF regime. The know-it-all CCF tied in compulsion, and loaded down with self-inflated planners who were bursting out at the seams with crack-pot theories and inconsistencies committed some of the most fantastic bungling ever recorded.

Of course the proponents of compulsory car insurance will tell the public how it eliminates profits. This is another NDP fallacy which is as dead as the proverbial dodo. It has been proven time and time again that government administration costs are more than the administration and profit of private enterprise.

All government projects start out with good intentions but it isn't too long before dry rot sets in due to a lack of incentive and a real urge to do things efficiently. Mark my words — unless a compulsory plan you may pay less per car but you will never know what it actually cost you. Instead of government investigating insurance companies they should be investigating their own operations thereby saving the taxpayers millions.

Extravagant

I read with surprise, on Page 1 of the Colonist that Mr. Bennett has sent one of his ministers with some dogwood shrubs to the Crown Prince of Japan.

Mr. Bennett is exceeding his duty in so doing. He could have mailed these shrubs for under $10.

Why is he allowed to waste so many of our millions of dollars of B.C. money?

Only Question Now Remaining Is When It Will Happen

War Between China, U.S. 'Inevitable'

By ROBERT S. ELEGANT
From Hong Kong

HONG KONG — An authoritative Chinese Communist source has declared that war between China and the United States over Viet Nam is inevitable and the only question is how soon it will come.

Using that same argument, the Communists are preparing the Chinese people for war in secret indoctrination sessions.

The Hong Kong Wen Hui Pao has just completed a series of articles under the title "Several Problems Relating to the Present Situation."

Their general thesis maintains that war cannot be avoided because Viet Nam is the cockpit for a Sino-American struggle for control of the first underdeveloped world and ultimately the entire world.

The commentator in Wen Hui Pao also held that "American imperialism" can only be deflected by armed conflict from its plan to block the worldwide revolutionary movement so that it can expand its exploitation of the "semi-colonial areas."

The Wen Hui Pao, a Communist-controlled newspaper, always speaks for Peking. Because it is formally non-official, it speaks even more freely than the uninhibited official Chinese organs. But all its major utterances are cleared with Peking, and in many cases the Hong Kong Journal says what Peking is really thinking even before the official organs speak.

In this case, the authentic presentation of the Chinese Communist's views is demonstrated by the fact that the Peking People's Daily has just begun to use the same specific citations to prove the same points Wen Hui Pao made.

The Hong Kong article undoubtedly represents what Communist cadres and the Chinese people are being told in private study sessions, since the paper has consistently foreshadowed the official line in the past.

As Wen Hui Pao sees the present situation, the conflict between China and the United States is fundamental and irreconcilable.

It is now being fought out in South Viet Nam. But if the Viet Nam war did not exist, the conflict would be fought elsewhere. The conflict can only end with the destruction of one side or the other.

The Chinese proudly avow that they are implacably committed to bringing about the victory of "the people's struggle" throughout Asia, Latin America and Africa. They believe that the United States is just as implacably committed, first, to destroying that movement and, second, to extending its own "imperialist exploitation" throughout the globe.

American capitalism, according to the Chinese analysts, could not exist if it did not constantly extend its political authority in order to ensure sources of raw material and captive markets for its rapacious industry.

Throughout, the articles insist that war will break out when the United States attacks China, since China will never attack first—even if the United States "spreads the flames of war" to Cambodia, Laos and North Viet Nam.

The immutable American determination to attack China, according to Wen Hui Pao, arises from American recognition of the single greatest fact of international politics today: China's leadership of the worldwide "liberation movement."

Indeed, China is now the only force opposing American imperialism's ambition to dominate the entire world, since the Russians, having become bourgeois, have betrayed the cause. The American "ruling circles" must, therefore, destroy China or perish themselves, according to Wen Hui Pao's reasoning.

This is why, the first article concludes, "America must absolutely attack China and a Sino-American conflict can under no circumstances be avoided. That is the decisive factor in the present international situation. The question is only one of time, whether the attack will come sooner or later."

Fly-By Intended, Say Experts

Venus Hit by Error?

By MARVIN MILES

Russia may have planned to send out two automatic stations one after the other at a small distance in time interval" (Nov. 12 and 16) Izvestia said.

The two probes will increase the chances of obtaining authentic information about the planet."

On Jan. 1 the official Russian news agency, Tass, reported in Moscow that the course of Venus-3 — the spacecraft that hit Venus — was automatically corrected on Dec. 26 to bring it "closer" to Venus.

A Reuters dispatch from Moscow as late as Monday said the two "automatic stations" were due to pass on either side of the planet, carrying different scientific instruments.

Space experts pointed to the difficulty of knowing the exact track of distant planets and said a small trajectory error could have headed Venus-3 for an impact even though it was intended as a fly-by probe.

The possibility of an unintended impact again raised the question of whether Venus might have been contaminated with Earth microbes by an unsterilized probe.

Normally a fly-by mission would not call for difficult sterilization procedures, but great care would be taken to assure that the spacecraft would not strike the target planet.

An unsterilized probe, it was pointed out, could have deposited microbes on Venus that might multiply and destroy any future chance of determining if life forms originated on the planet.

BACKGROUND

White Miners Threaten Nation's Stability

Zambia Walking a Tightrope

By RICHARD HALL
From Ndola

Zambia is edging its way along a tightrope with no idea of the distance to the other end. It is the front-line country in the struggle against Rhodesia, and in the 16 weeks since Ian Smith seized independence President Kenneth Kaunda has been engaged in a tense balancing act.

He has difficulties on both sides—many African supporters of his government are increasingly impatient with the British sanctions policy, while on the Copperbelt thousands of white miners are in turbulent mood.

Last week Kaunda spoke on television and radio at 30 minutes' notice to threaten the white miners with the most severe government action unless they stopped wildcat strikes.

The Copperbelt is the keystone of Zambia's economy, producing metal worth $510,000,000 annually. It also has a long history of industrial and political unrest.

The skills of the 8,000 whites keep the Copperbelt going and the miners know it.

Recently they have been pressing for massive wage increases and the mining companies have made a "final offer" which would boost by almost one-third the already handsome pay scales. But the sudden and unexplained walk-outs have continued.

Everyone knows that most of the white miners support

Smith—at least half of them are Rhodesians or South Africans. The miners are torn between their desire for the big money and fury at having to learn it in a country committed to beating down the Smith rebellion.

So the walkouts are a political demonstration, even if some of the miners do not clearly understand it that way themselves. President Kaunda pointed this out in his broadcast: "The situation is giving the clear impression that the people responsible are none other than supporters of foreign interests and intrigues."

The Rhodesian regime has a well organized rumour-mongering network in Zambia with no shortage of agents. William Harper, one of Mr. Smith's ministers, has several times stressed the importance of "psychological warfare" and "hair-raising tales are always being let loose on the Copperbelt."

Sometimes these tell how President Kaunda might freeze all the white miners' savings so that they cannot take any money out of the country when they retire. Others whisper of impending revolutions and civil war in Zambia—events in Nigeria, Uganda and Ghana have given the agents provocateurs plenty of help.

Zambia's difficulty is that there is a world shortage of skilled mining men and although resignations have not been unduly high since UDI, finding replacements has been troubling the mining companies.

Although African miners are now being trained at high pressure, they were held back by white union policies until three years ago, and so cannot be ready to take over top positions for a decade or more.

The whites know they have the economy over a barrel. Many of them have been long in the country and recall the days when their former idol Sir Roy Welensky called the political tune. So although they are called expatriates today and given three-year contracts, they retain political involvements.

If Britain comes eventually to lose hope in sanctions and turns to military action against Rhodesia, then the white miners will almost certainly refuse to go down the mines as a sign of sympathy with their kith and kin. This could be a racial flashpoint in Zambia.

Mainza Chonwa, President Kaunda's minister of home affairs, made the attitude of the bulk of the Cabinet quite plain last week. Speaking at a meeting of the Organization for African Unity in Addis Ababa he said: "Pressure must be put on Britain to use force right now." Kaunda himself says that Zambia and Britain have agreed a deadline for sanctions to work but that he cannot reveal how far ahead it is.

Everyone here is well aware of the logistic problems of attacking Rhodesia, and on the south side of the Zambezi there is a high escarpment which is heavily defended. The only real chance of success without desperately high casualties would be by an airborne operation—but there are few airfields north of the river from which this could be mounted.

It is generally recognized here that a British attack would have to wait until the Rhodesians show signs of internal dissension—and there is no hint of a crack yet. There is little confidence in Chonwa's assertion in Addis Ababa that "the Smith regime would not offer any kind of resistance at this moment."

Life continues in Zambia amid the anxieties of a cold war that may soon turn hot—against an enemy with formidable powers of retaliation. Zambia never forgets that almost all its electricity comes from the massive Kariba Dam. And the switches are on Smith's side of the Zambezi.

Earth Dented

By BRYAN NICKOL
From London

The Earth is shaped like a pear with some sizeable dents and bumps on it and not, as traditional astronomy has it, like a neat ball flattened a bit at the poles and bulging slightly at the equator because it is spinning.

This was the picture that emerged at a meeting in London on the "determination of the geoid (shape of the Earth) from satellite data" held by the Royal Astronomical Society.

D. G. King-Hole, of the Royal Aircraft Establishment at Farnborough showed a diagram of what a section of the pear-shaped earth would look like if it was sliced from pole to pole.

The north pole, the stalk end of the pear, is about 30 feet further from the equator than it would be if the shape was regular. The south pole, on the other hand, is about 120 feet closer.

The bulge of the pear is in the southern hemisphere and its waist in the northern, pinched in a maximum of 15 feet around the tropic of cancer.

Even odder was a map produced by Dr. R. R. Allen, showing the dents and bumps in the Earth's shape. The most remarkable one is a huge depression covering thousands of square miles and centred in the Indian Ocean.

At its centre the sea level is more than 200 feet below the average figure for the Earth. There are other "lows" in the western Atlantic, the eastern Pacific, and south of Australia.

The biggest high is centred on Britain, with others off the Pacific coast of South America, south of Africa, and stretching from New Guinea towards Japan.

Poison Target: 19,000,000

By HARRY TRIMBORN
The Los Angeles Times
SUN VALLEY, Calif. — A San Valley man who allegedly plotted to poison all of the nation's 19,000,000 Negroes had also planned to enlist the aid of the Ku Klux Klan but didn't because he feared Klan informers, authorities have disclosed.

Yet it was a "confidential informant" and three undercover district attorney's agents who had no contacts with the Klan that led to the arrest Monday of the soft-spoken 35-year-old welder, Herman Henry.

The disclosure of his asserted contacts with the KKK came as Henry was arraigned on a charge of soliciting for the purpose of murder. Conviction on the charges carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison or a $5,000 fine. Bail was set at $25,000.

Henry, a native of Camden, Ark., who came to California 20 years ago, reportedly approached the Klan in Alabama by telephone and mail on several occasions during the past two months.

"He wanted to present his plan to them, but he felt there were too many informers in the Klan and backed out," an informed source said.

Delving into the reasons for Henry's alleged scheme which he kept secret from his wife, Christine, and their two sons, authorities were able to come up only with this hazy explanation:

Henry felt that Negroes were directly responsible for the "obvious" lack of respect for law and order in the United States. Also responsible were Communists and whites "living with" Negroes, and he assertedly planned to kill them, too.

The mass poisoning would be accomplished by sending free food samples, spiked with deadly chemicals, to every intended victim. This would be done from four distribution points in the nation.

Henry assertedly hoped to finance the gigantic operation with proceeds from an "invention" he had developed.

The alleged scheme was shattered when investigators appeared at the Henry home to arrest him.

The investigators said they found seven rifles, shotguns and pistols in the house, which Henry explained he used for "hunting."

Henry assertedly denied the plot, then gave "evasive answers" during questioning. His wife, shocked at the

Lease Bid Renewed

Bud Blackburn of Anglers' Anchorage Marina said Wednesday the firm has started re-application for a foreshore lease scuttled by Central Saanich council Tuesday.

The application for 70 feet of foreshore was rejected after residents protested development would increase pollution, create a fire hazard and violate their rights.

The company planned a jetty with a tackle house and coffee shop at the foot of Marchants at Brentwood Bay.

AGAINST LEASE

Coun. Margaret Salt introduced the motion recommending to the provincial lands department that the lease be refused.

Foreshore leases must be approved by municipal, provincial and federal levels.

Rates for weekday, person-to-person and short-haul calls will be unchanged.

Batman Digs Up Saturday Serials

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Will Batmania bring back the Saturday serial?

They're hoping so along film exchange row, where salesmen for the movie companies hang out. For years the film sellers could no more sell a serial than they could a William S. Hart western.

Batman may be changing that. The success of the TV show caused the local Columbia exchange to dig deep into the vaults and come up with a Batman serial made during the Second World War.

RECORDS BROKEN

The 12 chapters were spilled together and booked into Hollywood's Cinema Theatre, Running time: 4½ hours. What happened? Crowds broke the house record.

The Batman serial was scheduled for test showings in nearby cities. If the tests prove as profitable as the showing in Hollywood, the serial may receive continent-wide release. Columbia also has a sequel serial, Batman and Robin.

OVERWEIGHT

The Batman serial is good for laughs, though not the intended ones of the TV series. The heavy is a hissing, taped-eyed J. Carroll Nash who plans a takeover of Gotham City.

Lewis Wilson is an overweight but earnest Batman. Douglas Croft is a bushy-haired, earnest Robin.

Fishermen Ignored By Ministers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two federal cabinet ministers have been accused of being remiss in their duties to the British Columbia fishing industry by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.).

A spokesman for the 22-member delegation which returned here last week from Ottawa said Transport Minister Pickersgill and Public Works Minister McRath both refused to see the group.

The spokesman said Tuesday meetings were held with lesser officials in both departments, but it was impossible to resolve important policy questions at the lower level.

SAFETY MEASURE

The delegation had planned to press Mr. Pickersgill for legislation ensuring greater safety aboard fishing vessels, including stability tests, load limits and expansion of the B.C. Coast Guard by at least four vessels. The union intended to ask the public works minister for new wharves or breakwaters at such points as San Juan Harbor, Kitimat, Alert Bay and Queen Charlotte City.

High-Rise Report Tersely Denied

A report that the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. plans a two-towered, 15-story building on the site it now occupies in the heart of downtown Victoria was tersely denied Wednesday.

"There are no immediate plans underway for this or any other type of development in Victoria at this time," said a statement which was issued from the office of the manager of the Victoria store, Reg Hind.

City hall officials said Wednesday they had no knowledge of a conference between members of city hall and company officials to discuss Bastion Square, the Broad Street mall and the environs of the present store with a view to planning the locale for a future building.

Belgium Seeks Uniform of 16th

The Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) has received a request from the Belgian government for a complete uniform as worn by the 16th Battalion (Canadian Scottish), CEF, during the First World War.

New Stripe

Promoted to rank of lieutenant-commander is Bruce Baker, executive officer of navy's utility squadron VU-33 at Patricia Bay airport. Lt.-Cmdr. Baker entered navy in 1952 as a midshipman. Following graduation as a naval aviator from Royal Navy Air Station at Eglinton, Northern Ireland, he served in HMCS Shearwater in Nova Scotia and on aircraft carriers HMCS Magnificent and Bonaventure.

War. The uniform is to be on permanent display at Lessines National Museum.

Members are now searching for items to make up this uniform, in particular the collar badges (the figure '16' surmounted by the letter C), the 16th Battalion divisional shoulder patches (red, surmounted by a small blue square), and old-style khaki jackets.

COULD BE ALTERED

The jackets could, if standard infantry type, be altered to Highland style.

Veterans, their relatives or friends, with items to donate are requested to notify the regimental orderly room at Bay Street armory (phone 385-1371, local 205) or Major Eric Henderson (385-3480).

Annual dinner of the Canadian Scottish Regimental Association will be held at 8 p.m., March 12, in the Bay Street armory. All past and serving members of the Canadian Scottish and the 16th Battalion, CEF, are invited. Tickets may be bought from Alan Strugnell, 1886 Douglas, or at the door.

Region Idea For Course

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—The University of Waterloo will offer a four-year course in regional planning next fall leading to a bachelor of arts degree. Dr. Ralph R. Krueger, head of the university's department of geography, said the course is believed to be the first undergraduate course of its kind in Canada. Other planning schools offer only postgraduate courses he said.

Carpenters' Dispute

Talks Going To Conciliation

A government conciliation officer has been asked for in the deadlocked negotiations between the Carpenters' Union and 275 B.C. construction firms.

Talks broke down after only two meetings between the two sides.

About 3,500 of the union's 7,500 membership in B.C. are affected in the bargaining for a new contract. There are about 1,500 members in the eight locals on Vancouver Island—750 in Victoria—but it is not known how many are interested in the present negotiations.

UNION DEMANDS

The union is asking for a 50-cent hourly wage boost, a seven-hour working day instead of eight and extra fringe benefits.

Counter-proposals offered by the employers have not been disclosed.

No date has been set for the conciliation hearings.

Growth Requires Seats In North, Says Campbell

A new natural gas sale to the United States announced Tuesday will spur development of Northern B.C. Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell predicts.

He made the statement at the University of Victoria in defence of the government's decision to retain all seven seats in the sparsely settled north, despite the recommendation of the Angus royal commission on redistribution.

At the noon-hour debate, Liberal leader Ray Perrault attacked "scandalous electoral imbalance" before an audience of about 30 students.

UP-DOWN SUGGESTED

The Angus commission recommended that the seven northern ridings be reduced to five.

Social Credit MLAs hold six of the seven, and when the government announced its intentions in the redistribution bill, opposition members charged Social Credit with rigging the redistribution to its own advantage.

BB: ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. Campbell noted that a few hours earlier it had been announced that Westcoast

Leafs Win Again Rookie in Goal

By JIM TANG

Not yet a professional, Gary Holland is getting the job done while Victoria Maple Leafs continue their search for an experienced goalkeeper to replace the departed Al Millar.

The 21-year-old rookie did all that Millar could have done last night at Memorial Arena, making the biggest contribution as the somewhat off-color Maple Leafs scrambled their way to a 4-2 decision over San Francisco Seals before the smallest Western Hockey League crowd of the season—2,021 fans.

Bucks Nip Rochester

PORTLAND (AP)—Portland Buckaroos of the Western Hockey League survived a late rally by Rochester of the American League Wednesday night and held on to score a 4-3 victory.

The win averaged an earlier 4-3 overtime win by Rochester in the east. It left Portland five points ahead of Victoria.

Holland was beaten after only 10 seconds when Wayne Connelly circled the Victoria net and backhanded in, but the youngster shook off the bad start to turn in a fine performance.

With the Victoria defence having perhaps its poorest game of the season as a unit, it was often put up to him—and he came through when it counted until his club had built up a reasonably safe lead.

With his club ahead only 2-1, he blocked Stan Gilbertson close in, got a toe to Mike Harvey's blocked shot, made a fine stop on Al Nicholson and the flopped to cover Del Topoli's try with the rebound in the first period.

He stopped the Seals from tying it by beating Harvey and Connelly on two break-ins in the second period before the Leafs boosted their margin to 3-1. And there were four better-than-average stops in the third period before Holland yielded again to Connelly, who tucked the puck in an open side after Holland had gone down to block John Gravel's hard point shot.

NEEDED IT
It was the kind of goaling the Leafs needed last night. Again having trouble with the Seals as they played it the San Francisco way, they showed their best only occasionally in a game featured by dozens of whistles for icing or freezing the puck.

Leafs had their best shot in the first period. Rallying immediately after Connelly's quick goal, they pulled even in 34 seconds, were ahead before the game was five minutes old and just missed three of four times.

BARLOW SHARPER
Bob Barlow, who showed delicate signs of ending a slump, squared it by rifling in Andy Hebertson's passout and Mike Labadie put the Leafs ahead by driving the puck through Jack McCartan's pads after taking a perfect break-in pass from Fred Hucul.

Milan Marcetia had two good chances and Gordie Reddall and John Slesver on each before the Leafs failed to sort of leave it up to Holland for a while.

SMALL OPENING
Claude Labrosse finally took some of the pressure off Holland by finding a small opening with a screened point shot at 14:47 of the second period and Lou Jankowski sort of touched it by first hitting Reddall's passout at 4:33 of the third period.

It was Holland's second win in four games in which he has allowed 11 goals but he will be working on borrowed time if he has to play in Vancouver tomorrow night.

ALL FIVE
Counting the half period played about mid-way through the season, he has now played in the five games allotted for an amateur and the Leafs have applied for a three-game extension of the trial period.

It will almost certainly be granted, and that would look after tomorrow's game in Vancouver, Saturday's here and next Wednesday's in San Francisco. But if the Leafs haven't found Millar's replacement by next Thursday, when they are scheduled in Los Angeles, their assistant trainer will have to become a full-fledged professional goalkeeper—in name, that is.

Clearly the class of the field to date, Jayvees wiped out Victoria Chinooks, 53-34, before 900 fans at Central Junior High School Wednesday night. Today they can rest and watch the three remaining clubs begin an uphill climb in pursuit.

They are Chinooks, Mt. Royal Junior College Cougars of Calgary, and Montreal Orchids, and they face a difficult task.

Cougars eliminated Halifax All-Saints by a whopping 104-69 score Wednesday, and Orchids closed strongly to oust Hamilton Quigleys, 75-69.

Cougars and Orchids play today at 12:30 at the Gordon Head gym, with the loser out and the winner to go against Chinooks tonight at the Central gym at 8.

Out of today's two games will come the only club to challenge the Jayvees, who will have two shots at the title. Tonight's winner meets UBC Friday at 8, and a win would mean the title for Jayvees. Should they be beaten, the title will be decided Saturday night.

Based on last night's games, that may well be the Cougars, who lost, 64-59, to Jayvees Tuesday night. They played that game without scoring star Ashlee Court, who was healthy enough to score 15 against Halifax last night.

HANDS FULL
Orchids had their hands full with Quigleys despite a 25-point effort by Ray Mischook, and Chinooks proved again that it will take a complete reversal for them to stop Jayvees once, let alone twice.

The Jayvees have it all—the bench, the rebounding, the shooting and the pulse. They took Chinooks for the fourth straight time last night, and every time out they look more convincing.

NEW HERO
Every game they play pick a hero, and it's always a different man. Last night it was Ken Kern.

"The guy is an amazing character," coach Norm Watt said. "His ankle is taped up so much it must feel like he's wearing a cast, but he says it's all right, and he goes out and gets 14 points."

GAME OVER
As usual, Jayvees broke quickly. In the first six minutes they didn't give up a field goal and built a 10-1 lead. Right there, it was game over for Chinooks, who haven't got the scoring power to outgun the Jayvees.

"We always get behind," coach Ollie Goldsmith said. "Then they can use their press on us, and we're forced into the game trying to catch up."

RUGGED NIGHT
Chinooks got 12 points from Ken Jackson, but six of them were from the free throw line as Jackson had one of his worst nights yet. He also drew two technical fouls.

Rookie Brian Brumwell, shooting more often, scored 10 and got his share of the rebounds. But Chinooks were simply outclassed.

NO TROUBLE
Cougars had no trouble whatever with All-Saints, and were able to use their second string much of the way, giving their big shooters valuable rest for today's possible two games.

Dan Quance scored 21 points, Skip Cronch 18, Wayne Haldane 17 and Court 15. Saints had what amounted to a two-man offence, getting 32 points from Irving Cohen and 23 from Louis Dixon.

NEEDED HELP
Orchids, who came here with the reputation of having Mischook and four guys named Joe, needed plenty of help from a rookie to beat Quigleys.

Hudson Alayne came on when starting guard John Morash fouled out with 16 minutes left, and scored five field goals to spark a Montreal comeback.

Quigleys led at half time, 45-36, but the drive went out of their offense, left with Vic Vineris when he fouled out with the score tied, 58-58.

Mischook scored 15 of his 25 points in the first half, but was in foul trouble early and played the late part of the game with four personals.

Bill Holt scored 17 points and for Quigley's Daryl Bowman was tops with 21.

The Tuesday telegram also informed Sadler "your city still excellent potential series site."

And after getting the telegram, Sadler had a long, long-distance talk with Lacy, but got no satisfaction. "Maybe we're just not under the right flag," Sadler said.

"I don't think they can do the job like we can. They don't have the weather for one thing."

The 1977 Babe Ruth baseball world series has been awarded to Fairbanks, Alaska, and B.C. Babe Ruth director Will Sadler is unhappy.

For two years Sadler has been working to get the tournament for Victoria, and until late Tuesday night was fairly sure he had it.

Then came a telegram from Jack O'Keefe in Stockton, Calif. "Alaska only attended regional meetings, but then in October '65 they applied for the world series. If we'd known they were going for it in '64 when we started our bid, it would have been different. But they just walked in the back door."

"It was a real disappointment," said Sadler, who still has hopes of appealing the decision to Babe Ruth president.

Chinooks Have One More 'Life'

Jayvees Draw Bead on Basket Title

By JIM TAYLOR

UBC Jayvees are heading for a Canadian junior basketball championship, and the odds and their own ability say they're going to make it.

Clearly the class of the field to date, Jayvees wiped out Victoria Chinooks, 53-34, before 900 fans at Central Junior High School Wednesday night. Today they can rest and watch the three remaining clubs begin an uphill climb in pursuit.

They are Chinooks, Mt. Royal Junior College Cougars of Calgary, and Montreal Orchids, and they face a difficult task.

Cougars eliminated Halifax All-Saints by a whopping 104-69 score Wednesday, and Orchids closed strongly to oust Hamilton Quigleys, 75-69.

Cougars and Orchids play today at 12:30 at the Gordon Head gym, with the loser out and the winner to go against Chinooks tonight at the Central gym at 8.

Out of today's two games will come the only club to challenge the Jayvees, who will have two shots at the title. Tonight's winner meets UBC Friday at 8, and a win would mean the title for Jayvees. Should they be beaten, the title will be decided Saturday night.

Based on last night's games, that may well be the Cougars, who lost, 64-59, to Jayvees Tuesday night. They played that game without scoring star Ashlee Court, who was healthy enough to score 15 against Halifax last night.

HANDS FULL
Orchids had their hands full with Quigleys despite a 25-point effort by Ray Mischook, and Chinooks proved again that it will take a complete reversal for them to stop Jayvees once, let alone twice.

The Jayvees have it all—the bench, the rebounding, the shooting and the pulse. They took Chinooks for the fourth straight time last night, and every time out they look more convincing.

The B.C.-New Brunswick match highlighted the morning round, with the last-place eastern team—beaten four straight games—knocking off the west coast foursome.

U.S. 'Breeds' Communism

By FRANK KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA —One of the top spokesmen for the United Church of Canada Wednesday accused the United States of "playing into the hands of Communist China" by its devastating bombing in Viet Nam.

Rev. Ray Hord, secretary of the church's board of evangelism and social service, said: "By carrying on a full-scale war and bombing defenceless villages, the United States is producing a condition that actually breeds Communism."

"The United States is defeating her own purpose. She is drawing Ho Chi Minh into the arms of China."

PICKETS
Mr. Hord was with a group of students which later picketed the parliament buildings.

The group and Mr. Hord were sharply critical of Canadian policy in Viet Nam, maintaining this country is weakly following the American line.

Meanwhile, External Affairs Minister Martin said "There has been some progress" in Canada's efforts to arrange a three-nation conference on Viet Nam.

As a prelude to possible larger peace negotiations, Mr. Martin has been trying to get India and Poland, the other members of the International Control Commission, to agree to convene a conference.

"I think I can say there has been some progress. I cannot report that there has been any final agreement," he told the Commons.

"There has been an indication by the government of India that it would be prepared to join Canada in the use of the commission for the purpose which was discussed with the secretary-general of the United Nations," he said, adding that India is insisting that Poland agree as well before action is taken.

WINNIPEG (CP) — An all-points manhunt is on for two hijackers who, bold as brass, took unscheduled delivery of an airborne gold shipment worth more than $450,000.

No violence was needed in the theft Tuesday night at Winnipeg International Airport. The robbers simply slipped for the billion-shipment, then drove away—in a stolen truck.

With surface nonchalance, posing to perfection as air freight employees, they even got help from their victims in loading the boxed gold bars aboard their pirate vehicle.

NORMAL GREETINGS
"Normal greetings were exchanged," said Police Chief George Maltby of the Greater Winnipeg city of St. James.

The gold was going from Red Lake in northwestern Ontario to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Brought as far as Winnipeg by TransAir, it was to have been trans-shipped to Ottawa via Air Canada.

The TransAir plane landed at 10 p.m. The hijackers were there to meet it.

They were wearing the standard winter dress of Air Canada ramp crew — parkas and white coveralls; they had an Air Canada truck and the consignment papers they carried seemed in order.

HAD PLENTY TIME

They drove away and it was more than an hour before Air Canada queried TransAir as to the whereabouts of the shipment. Another half hour of frantic calls followed before the fact of theft was established.

First estimates put the value of the stolen gold at approximately $500,000. However, police issued a revised figure Wednesday afternoon raising the estimate to $450,000.

COMPANY ESTIMATE

No breakdown was given, but a spokesman said the estimate was based on information received from the two mining companies whose gold got carried away in the brazen theft. The gold came from Madison Red Lake Gold Mines Ltd. and Campbell Red Lake Mines Ltd. The 12 bars in the shipment were in an equal number of wooden boxes bound by metal straps.

It smuggled out of the country, especially to the Orient, the gold can fetch a price double that fixed rate of $35 an ounce in U.S. currency.

Chief Maltby said it appears the thieves either received a tip at the mine or from somebody in Winnipeg.

"They knew what they were doing. They knew the gold was on that aircraft. The gold shipments are not made at regular intervals so they must have had some good information. . . ."

Socreds 'Evade' Pollution

B.C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault told the legislature Wednesday the government was evading its responsibility on the problem of pollution control.

He also launched an attack on Premier Bennett, saying that he had refused to answer letters from citizens about the pollution control problem.

"No premier should be so busy that he can ignore the citizens," Mr. Perrault continued.

"When the leader of a province begins to believe he rules instead of represents, he has outlived his usefulness."

The Liberal leader was supporting one of six opposition bills which were sidetracked Wednesday before receiving second reading.

The bill brought in by Tony Gargrave (NDP, MacKenzie) would give the pollution control board broader powers and extend the board's authority to include air and soil pollution as well as water pollution.

Mr. Perrault said that every time pollution was mentioned in the House during the past two years, a government member jumps up and asks for more time to think about it, but all they've come up with so far is political flim flam.

Mr. Gargrave said that while he did not expect the pollution problem to be solved overnight, he felt the pollution control board should be given more personnel and more money.

He told the House that up to now, "the government has shrugged off their responsibilities in this area."

B.C. LEADING

Leads and Forests Minister Williston replied that at the moment there is no effective pollution control legislation in Canada and that B.C. is leading the way in this area.

He said he is chairman of a nation-wide pollution control conference which will be held this fall and which has already cost B.C. $12,000 in the preparation of technical papers during the past 18 months.

The minister moved adjournment of the debate because the results of this conference would not be known until fall.

OPPOSITION

Mr. Gargrave called for a division, in which Mr. Williston's motion was carried by a vote of 27 to 17, with the New Democrats and Liberals in opposition.

The only opposition bill which brought sympathy, but not support, from the government benches was one brought in by Leo Nimsick (NDP, Cranbrook) which would give people a "cooling-off period" in which to reject agreements they had signed with "fly-by-night" door-to-door salesmen.

This bill, in the form of an amendment to the Sale of Goods Act, would give the buyer seven days in which to cancel agreements signed "anywhere outside trade premises."

MINDS CHANGE

"Too many times salesmen come to the door and make you feel that if you don't sign it now you are going to lose a bargain," said Mr. Nimsick.

And too many times, people sign agreements at the door and later "found they shouldn't have done it, couldn't afford it or didn't need it."

Alex Macdonald (NDP, Vancouver East) told the House he knew of a man in Vancouver who was taken for $750 by a door-to-door salesman who subsequently disappeared without delivering the goods.

SOCRED SYMPATHY

The unsuspecting buyer lost his savings in the deal, eventually lost his house and was "reduced to Skid Row" because of the activity of this salesman, he said.

Attorney-General Bonner, who moved adjournment of debate on this bill, said, "The government has sympathy for the objects sought to be protected... and are giving thought to legislation of this sort."

He said the government wanted to find out how similar laws operate elsewhere before it brought down its version.

Dave Barrett (NDP, Dewdney) presented a bill that would prevent the sentencing of children less than 12 years old to schools such as Brammen Lake near Nanaimo.

During the debate, he said there were 31 youngsters between the ages of nine and 12 in the school last year.

However, the bill was ruled out of order by Speaker William Murray (SC, Prince Rupert) because it dealt with matters involving the expenditure of public money—a government prerogative.

OUT AGAIN

A bill presented by Mr. Gargrave suffered the same death because it would require money to set up a legal aid system proposed in the bill.

Alex Macfarlane (L. Oak Bay) spoke for the fourth successive year on his bill which would allow persons to sue the government. It was ruled out of order because only the government can introduce such a law.

Mr. Macfarlane said that in British Columbia, the government was "judge and jury on its own cases" and that no one could sue for wrong done by the government unless the government agreed to be sued.

DETIMENT

The government "should be the first to ask that the citizens be free to sue the government if they feel something is wrong," he said.

Labor Minister Peterson moved adjournment of debate on a bill debate aimed at eliminating discrimination against women in the labor force.

He said that while he agreed in principle with the bill brought in by Alex Macdonald (NDP, Vancouver East), the proposed amendment to the Fair Employment Practices Act "could work to the detriment of those it was intended to assist."

The rest of the day's sitting was devoted to second reading of government bills.

Perrault

No Charges Laid By Board

No charges were laid in 1965 by the newly-organized provincial pollution control board, says Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Williston.

This was the reply given to a question placed on the order paper by Tony Gargrave (NDP, MacKenzie).

Mr. Williston reported that "the efforts of the responsible officials dealing with pollution control have been toward encouraging industrial and community installations to abate pollution."

Bonner Defends Licence-Lifting By Police Officers

Attorney-General Bonner answered criticism Wednesday that has come from outside the legislature against proposed laws to curb drinking drivers and those who leave the scene of an accident.

He defended the proposals in moving second reading of a bill which sets out requirements that empower a policeman to issue 24-hour roadside suspensions for suspected drinking drivers and make police stickers mandatory on vehicles with more than $100 damage before they can be repaired.

He said questions of civil liberty have been raised by several persons.

QUESTIONS COMPETENCE

But the roadside suspension provisions only questioned the "physical competence" of a driver as is done in driving tests when applying for a licence.

"A licence is not a right but a privilege to be obtained upon examination," he said.

ENDS THERE

The suspension data would not be used in any other action against the driver.

The sticker-before-repair provision was an effort to reduce the "unbelievable" rise in leaving the scene situations.

Alex Macdonald (NDP-Vancouver East) adjourned debate before second reading was

PGE Share-Purchase Bill Sparks Lively House Debate

A bill authorizing the government to buy $25,282,000 worth of unissued shares of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway was given unanimous second reading in the legislature Wednesday, after sparking a lively debate in the House.

Opposition Leader Strachan told the House he agreed with providing the money to offset PGE losses, but disagreed with management policies of the government.

He complained that $20,000,000 was borrowed in 1962 to lay 85-pound steel rail and "now we are ripping up the 85-pound rail which we haven't paid for and are proceeding to lay down 100-pound steel."

Liberal leader Ray Perrault charged that the premier was deliberately "cheating" the people of the province by not getting prime minister St. Laurent and federal subsidies for the PGE, planned to extend the PGE north of Prince George.

Gordon Gibson (L. North Vancouver) suggested that instead of investing the money provided in the bill, the government should sell the railway at a profit and invest its capital in another area.

'WE'LL NEVER SELL'

Premier Bennett answered the criticism.

The ripped-up rail was not lost but was being used on sidings and on extensions where there was less traffic, and "as long as I'm premier of this province, we will never sell the PGE."

He answered Mr. Perrault's charge with one of his own—one he has repeated several times—that B.C. is not getting fair treatment from the federal government.

He said B.C. went to the then

Rush Against Time

Estimates Debate Keeps MPs Late

OTTAWA (CP)—Sitting overtime for the second day in a row, the Commons Wednesday polished off another department in a drive to clean up debate on spending estimates before the end of the week.

The House sat 1½ hours past the usual 6 p.m. adjournment time in passing the 1965-66 spending estimates of the agriculture department.

The Commons clocks were ignored as the hands moved past 6 p.m. Unless an MP "calls it six o'clock" debate continues.

Liner Calls Saturday

The 26,000-ton P & O-Orient liner Oranva will be seen off Ogden Point breakwater about 8 a.m. Saturday when she stops to pick up a pilot.

She will dock in Vancouver to disembark 307 passengers and take on 363 passengers before sailing at 4 p.m. Sunday for Honolulu, Suva, Auckland and Sydney.

Tuesday night the Commons stayed in business until after midnight as it got through estimates of the finance, trade and industry departments.

Today it returns to estimates of the justice department, set aside Wednesday in an attempt to pass the estimates of five departments by today so the ministers responsible can attend a meeting with U.S. officials in Washington.

Four have gone through. The one not touched is the mines department.

PRESSING

With the fiscal year to end March 31, the government is pressing for approval of the estimates. The last interim supply bill to provide the government with money to meet its payrolls and day-to-day needs covered spending for February.

Interim supply is used to give the government spending money when Parliament is not sitting. Because of last summer's adjournment and the fall election, the government has been operating on this basis for 11 months of the fiscal year.

you too, should have a wine cellar

The greatest satisfaction and enjoyment of serving wine with meals comes from having a good selection of wines on hand, and being able to pick just the right wine to suit the mood of the moment and the menu. You'll be surprised how reasonably you can build and keep a wine "cellar" of your own... even five or six well chosen wines will give you sufficient to suit every meal and occasion.

Matching food and wines is a matter of taste — not of color — and there is only one simple rule to wine drinking...

if you like it — drink it!

Part of the fun and enjoyment of serving wines is experimenting to develop your own list of preferences. A good place to start is with the eighteen fine 'Calona' wines. Not all eighteen will suit your individual palate, but whether you like your wines dry, medium or sweet, you'll be surprised at how many you will like.

The following chart is an excellent starting guide of wine/food combinations, but don't be afraid to serve any wine/food combination that appeals to you or your guests.

WHEN	SUGGESTED WINE	SERVE
Before dinner and for light entertaining	Golden Wine Silver Wine French Vermouth Italian Vermouth Champagne Crackling Brand Still Red Medium Dry Sherry	Lightly flavoured with lemon-lime Light, smooth, distinctive Dry and Pale Sweet and fragrant Bubbly, gay, full-bodied Medium dry, pink, sparkling Medium dry, light-bodied, pink Delightfully mellow, rich, nutlike	Chilled Chilled Room Temp. WINE STORAGE Wine storage is not complicated... any cool, dry, dark place is fine. 'Calona' table wines have modern hermetically sealed screw tops and can be stored upright. They're easy to open, and partly used bottles can be re-closed without flavour loss.

The only Canadian wine made right in the Okanagan where the grapes are grown.

OTTAWA—The cabinet today will decide if a royal commission on crime will be ordered in Canada.

Quebec Strike Threat

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's 25,000 civil servants will strike March 25 unless their first collective agreement with the government is signed by that date, a spokesman for the Quebec Civil Servants' Union (CNTU) said Wednesday night.

The announcement was made at a press conference by union president Raymond Fortin, who immediately yielded the floor to chief negotiator Raymond Parent.

Mr. Parent said March 25 is "the final date for a settlement of the conflict."

"It is physically possible to settle all problems in this period if the union is offered genuine negotiations."

The union has complained of often in the past the government has been dragging out the contract talks, which started last September.

Pension Hike Would Lift Taxes With It

REGINA (CP)—Health Minister MacEwen said Wednesday a universal $5 increase in old age pensions to $100 a month would cause tax boosts and major anomalies.

By contrast, the guaranteed income plan for the aged proposed by a Senate committee would be less burdensome and would aid those in real need.

The Senate plan has administrative and sociological points in its favor, he said.

The report urged a guaranteed minimum income of $1,200 a year or $105 a month for single persons aged 65 and over.

TORONTO (CP)—The Star elusion from CBC premises. He has not lost any salary. A change in production assignments is a common occurrence and is within the right of any employer.

The Star says Mr. Edmunds has "been placed on devotional programming until his suspension ends some time after March." CBC officials denied Wednesday Mr. Edmunds had been suspended and said assignment of producers to other programs is a common practice.

A statement issued by the CBC at Winnipeg said:

"Hugh Edmunds has not been suspended since suspension entails loss of salary and ex-

Crash Witnesses Sought by Police

City police are looking for witnesses to a two-car collision at Bay and Shelbourne just before noon Wednesday in which two people were injured.

Hilda Becker, driver of a rear-engined European car, received internal injuries.

Steve Yarmie, 3315 Keats, received scalp and face lacerations when he smashed through the windshield. He was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Miss Becker, 1023 Esquimalt, was in a fairly good condition in the hospital.

Police said her car demolished 40 feet of fence in the collision.

Damage was estimated at $3,000.

Kip Skips Dad's Problems

SANTO DOMINGO—"Shining boots only dirty your hands," mused Pte. Christopher (Kip) Hargrove as he flipped 35 cents to a Dominican shoeshine boy and leisurely began to lace his black combat boots.

"And besides, he does a better job."

Kip, 21, is the son of Marion Hargrove, a former U.S. army private who parlayed his military misadventures into a best-selling novel and a motion picture called See Here, Private Hargrove.

The misadventures that befell his father in the Second World War have escaped the lanky Kip.

"My only claim to army fame is that I have never pulled KP," Hargrove declares, from behind the control panel of the armed forces radio station in Santo Domingo where he is chief announcer.

"This is due entirely to my height (six-foot-three)," he explains. "When I entered basic training at Ford Gordon, Ga., the tallest men were named acting squad leaders and, as such, were exempt from kitchen police. A week later, we were replaced as leaders, but our names were never entered on the KP roster."

Canadians Prove Critical

City Long-Hairs 'Revolt'

Watched Mods Look Right Back

By TONY DILLON-DAVIS

When Dan Davis and Chris Bruce walk down Victoria streets they often get the sneaking suspicion they are being watched.

They generally are. Dan and Chris are the first elements of the English "mod" invasion, which the two young men believe may hit Victoria soon.

These gentlemen from the new Britain work at, predictably, the Old England Inn.

To Work at 16

Dan, 18, comes from Fulham borough, London, and has been in Victoria nine months. Chris, 19, comes from Maidstone, Kent. He's been here 18 weeks.

Like most young people in Britain, Dan and Chris finished high school at 16 and went out and got jobs.

"In 1964 a man named John Stephens, who ran a store on Carmarthen Street, London, started putting out clothes that were a breakaway from the drab greys that characterized men's clothing," Chris said.

At about the same time, the Beatles popularized long hair styles.

Kept Up

Both Dan and Chris took advantage of the new styles, for both hair and clothes.

Chris classified himself as a "mod," short for modern, which meant he tried his best to keep up with fashions, which in Britain change every two weeks.

"The older generation accepted the new styles of dress and hair. As long as the hair was combed, the clothing neat, and the mod polite and a hard worker, he didn't have any trouble getting a good job," Chris said.

Broad-Minded

"They didn't criticize us like they do in Canada. They were much more broad-minded."

"They didn't judge us by our clothing and the length of our hair, or the way our hair is styled. If a guy styles his hair here, people think he's queer."

Chris commented that most North American males don't know how good they could look if they took advantage of the mod fashions.

The well-dressed mod is likely to turn up dressed in almost anything, including shirts with frills at the cuffs and collar.

Good Jobs

"Mods hold very good jobs. They make up to $30 a week. They meet in coffee bars and talk religion and politics. They frequent concerts, as well as big beat rock, the theatre, and science museums."

"They wear ripple-soled shoes, heavy tweed trousers, double-breasted jackets which flare slightly from the waist, tab shirts with two-inch-high collars, and silk-knitted or floral ties."

"Their hair is brushed forward. At the centre a burst rises and sweeps down the back of the neck," Chris said.

At the opposite end of the fashion stick is the rocker. "The rocker's first love is his motorbike," Dan said.

"He wears black leather jackets, flying boots, light blue jeans, and long greasy hair, usually in revolting styles. The styles are kept in place by about an ounce of grease."

"The majority, about 70 per cent, are hoods. Rocker girls wear exactly the same clothes as the boys, and daub their faces with pale makeup and bright red lipstick."

Hospital Help

Yet, Dan said, about 600 rockers have joined a club organized by the Bishop of Exeter.

The club, called the 59 Club, was formed to get the rockers off the street.

It succeeded, and more. The rockers formed a group called the Volunteer Emergency Service.

When blood supplies or drugs are needed badly by a hospital, the rockers go into action.

They go to a hospital that has the needed supplies, strap them on their motorcycles and carry them to the needy hospital.

Never Stopped

"Sometimes, travelling between London and some outside city, the rockers attain speeds of 100 miles an hour on a freeway. They are never stopped when on an emergency run like that," Dan said.

Soon after the mod styles started rivaling the rocker for popularity, British youth hit world headlines when rioting started all over the country, especially in beach resort towns like Brighton and Margate.

Chris said no one really knows how the riots started, but he guesses the instigators were the hoodlum minority in the mod camp, hopped up on drugs.

"In London, in many of the discotheques, one can obtain purple hearts (benzedrine) for as little as eight cents each."

"They are usually taken for kicks by a minority of mods, but you must remember there are 2,000,000 mods in Great Britain."

He said that about half of the mod-rocker crowd took part in the riots.

Chris and Dan said that generally they were disappointed with Canadian, and specifically, Victoria youth.

"Canadian youth is chained down by conformity. Most seem to wear sneakers, sweat shirts, white socks, and brush cuts!" Chris said.

Bad Designing

"The mod styles are definitely not in Canada yet. We hope they catch on. There is nothing effeminate about wearing clothes of a different or unusual style."

"We consider the 14 and 15-year-olds in Victoria who try to wear long hair styles utterly revolting," Dan said.

"A lot of young people here just don't seem to know how to dress to advantage. Clothes in Canada are generally very badly designed. This is why Chris and I do our own designing and have our clothes custom-tailored."

"All most of the boys can seem to find to do is drive around and around the block looking for girls and trouble."

"The older-generation people forget they were young themselves once, and followed the flapper and zoot-suit styles," Chris commented.

"They should take a good look at photos taken of themselves when they were young before they criticize us," Dan said.

A helicopter will take off from Government House at 11 a.m. March 12, carrying Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes and Viscount Amory to New Westminster for ceremonies of the 1966 British Columbia Centenary.

Lord Amory, who is governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, will be guest of honor at the inaugural dinner of the celebrations at the Empress Hotel at 7 p.m. the previous night.

"The distance between Victoria and New Westminster is the same as it was 116 years ago, when British rule came to the Pacific Northwest," observed L. J. Wallace, general chairman of the centennial committee. "Fortunately, the time factor has shrunk spectacularly."

Here is Lord Amory's schedule:

March 10-8:45 p.m. Arrive Vancouver by air.

March 11-11:15 a.m. Visit Vancouver city hall and take part in various functions before leaving for Victoria at 3:15 by government plane.

4:15 p.m.—Arrive Government House.

6:50 p.m.—Leave Government House for Inaugural Centennial dinner at Empress Hotel.

March 12-11 a.m. Leave Government House by helicopter for New Westminster, to be met by Mayor J. S. Gifford.

After luncheon at 2:30 p.m. ceremonies, return to Victoria, arriving Government House at 4:15 p.m.

Five Miss Injury

Luck was riding with drivers and passengers of two cars in Sooke when their vehicles were involved in accidents Wednesday.

Ronald D. Blundell of Duncan was driving his fully-loaded logging truck into a left turn onto Sooke Road at 2:40 p.m. when connections between the truck cab and the trailer's rear wheels snapped.

LOAD DUMPED

The trailer swung around and dumped the load of logs onto a parked car belonging to James Moore, 3243 Henderson.

The rear end of the car was squashed flat, police said. Mr. Moore, sitting in the front seat, escaped injury.

DEEP FALL

In another accident, Frank Wilson of Sooke was driving toward Sooke on Phillips Road when his car hit a soft shoulder and rolled 50 feet down an embankment.

Mr. Wilson, his two children and another passenger escaped injury. The car was demolished.

Esquimalt Gives Up Stadium Say

Esquimalt has opted out of sharing control of the proposed centennial stadium at University of Victoria.

However, Reeve Ray Bryant announced at a meeting Wednesday of Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt councils that his municipality would share in construction costs.

Reporters were excluded from the meeting on a motion by Coun. J. D. Watts of Oak Bay.

Following the meeting, its chairman, Mayor Toone, said the councils and the university had agreed to proceed with the stadium.

Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay will share control and operating costs, estimated at $10,000 a year for the five-year term of the agreement.

The agreement is to be renegotiated in five years.

The control committee consists of a member each from the three participating councils, one member from the Victoria Sports Council and four from the university.

Labor Council Demands Ban on Nuclear Flights

Victoria Labor Council demanded Wednesday night that the federal government tell the United States not to fly aircraft carrying nuclear bombs over Canadian territory.

The resolution, prompted by the recent accidental loss of four bombs—with safety catches on—by the crash of a U.S. plane off the coast of Spain, also called for a withdrawal of all U.S. nuclear arms from Canadian soil.

Overwhelming adoption of the motion was signified by council, which has previously gone on record in support of Canada remaining a non-nuclear country.

CAUTION ADVISED

Several delegates, however, recommended caution before inferring criticism of American nuclear policy.

Bill Knowles, Construction Laborers' delegate, declared flatly the resolution "goes against my grain."

Ken Peaker, Carpenters' Union, countered that even people who considered themselves good American citizens were very critical of their government's actions "in interference with other countries' affairs."

The Spanish incident, while the bombs were not triggered, brought a danger of contamination, he said.

Delegate Bob Herriott, who once served at NORAD headquarters at Colorado Springs, said that without American planes, "we are dead ducks up here," and asked what was the use of a defence system if it was not armed.

Council secretary Harry Anderson said he opposed the resolution, but only because it was the federal government, not the American, he thought should be blamed for having nuclear arms stored on Canadian soil.

CONDEMNATION

Among those who favored the resolution as it stood, Jack Driscoll, first vice-president of the council, said the fact that the Americans had gathered up hundreds of tons of Spanish soil for analysis was condemnation of their own actions. "We don't want to see these weapons in Canada," he said.

Another resolution passed by the council called for support for the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council in asking municipalities not to approve money bylaws until the provincial-municipal cost-sharing formula had been reviewed.

Resolutions handed on to the annual convention of the Canadian Labor Congress call for a statutory holiday on the first Monday of August, a road link between Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland,

New Electronic Element Eyes Offshore Vessels

An entirely new electronic element to work with the Rescue Co-ordination Centre's Pacific Coast marine search activities will be pressed into service next week.

A new teletype relay system will tie ROC into a United States Coast Guard reporting system on merchant vessels of all nations operating in the offshore waters of British Columbia. It is known as Automated Merchant Vessel Report System (AMVER) with headquarters in New York.

Vessels on offshore voyages are encouraged to volunteer sailing reports and position reports to the AMVER centre in

New York via selected coastal or ocean station vessel radio stations.

A computer takes the information and generates and maintains dead reckoning positions for the vessels while they are in the plotting area. The search and rescue capabilities of each vessel are also fed to the computer from available sources of information.

When a distress call is picked up off the B.C. coast, RCC will ask the computer in New York for the predicted location of each vessel known to be in the distress area, and radio the closest vessel to go to the distress scene and help.

Building Slow In February

Building in Victoria—which fell off in the dying weeks of 1965—still hasn't recovered, as figures for February show.

Permits to the value of $707,341 were issued by the city engineer's department in February as compared to $845,697 in the same month in 1965.

The total value of permits for the first two months of this year was $1,333,344 while that of January and February last year was $1,920,113.

TWO BIG PERMITS

Two big permits were taken out during the month, one for $140,000 for an addition to St. Ann's Academy. A second permit, for $55,000 for the provincial museum, does not reflect the multi-million dollar value of the job as permits are taken out on a monthly basis.

The break in the building boom, which kept companies humping for years to keep up with orders, came in December, 1965, when permit value fell to $355,000.

Construction men said Wednesday the industry had never quite recovered its mid-1965 state of robust health although things were now on the upswing and there was no reason why the remainder of this year should not see an ever-accelerating pace.

Scottish Seaman Dies in City

Scottish seaman William McLean Scott, 60, died in the Veterans' Hospital Wednesday almost two months after he took sick while the ship was in Victoria.

Chief steward on the Pacific Northwest, Mr. Scott took sick Jan. 6, and was taken to the hospital.

SERVED IN NAVY

Born in Favers, Scotland, he served in the Royal Navy before joining the crew of the Pacific Northwest.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in McCall Brothers Floral Chapel, and his ashes will be scattered on the sea.

Organizations

Search Cause
Of Dropouts

By JEAN SHARP

Canadian From Women's Editor

When you ask senior members of some of Canada's national women's organizations why membership has dropped to pre-war levels, most look outside the clubs for reasons.

When you ask outsiders you get an unflattering picture of the clubs as time-wasting, elderly and social in the worst sense.

The senior officers are usually strong-minded, intelligent women. The posts can cost money, so the women who fill them are often drawn from the ranks of the socially established. Some make near-careers of their club work and would not if they were not convinced of its worth.

Mrs. D. W. McGibbon of Toronto, immediate past president of the IOOE, said: "I think a lot of organizations, including our own, are finding it difficult to enlist new members partly because there are so many organizations clamoring for attention."

"When we were organized in 1900 you didn't have hospital auxiliaries, symphony and art gallery auxiliaries. Perhaps they have the glamor our organizations had when they were founded."

TOO MUCH GOSSIP

Mrs. McGibbon said she thinks the modern mobility of families also costs the clubs members.

Mrs. Philip Matheson of Oyster Bay, B.C., P.E.I., national president of the Women's Institutes, blames job for taking women out of volunteer organizations.

"When they get home from work at night and finish feeding their families, they are just too tired to go to meetings."

What goes on at local meetings is often what outsiders say keeps them outsiders. Rightly or wrongly they envisage a local meeting beginning with a business discussion of the latest fund-raising project, including possibly a talk by a member as a nod to the national body's program, and a tea break.

Sample reactions go like this: "My mother belonged for a while and quit because all they did was gossip and backbite. When I join a club it's because I want to do something."

Age is another factor. Even members sometimes say the clubs are run by old fogies who have known one another for years and lost touch with what young newcomers want from a club. Women under 45 are rarities at national and provincial conventions.

PRETTIER A FACTOR

The groups, social images help and hinder membership drives. Women stay out because they feel they wouldn't be welcome due to particular backgrounds. They join for prestige and even switch allegiance in a new city if they consider one group more prestigious in Halifax, for instance, than in Winnipeg.

Some young members join for a different sort of social reason. A suburban housewife who has been president of her branch said: "I joined because the membership conveners was a friend."

"Maybe sometimes national aims don't filter down to the individual member, but I think in most cases they do," Mrs. Matheson said. "I think we are putting forth a bigger effort now to get through to each local member."

One of the national functions usually mentioned in a discussion of the gap between national and local aims is the drawing up and presentation of briefs and resolutions to government. Officers say these are effective, a legitimate and important function of the national groups and represent the membership's opinions.

PLAY VALID ROLE

Mrs. H. H. Steen of Vancouver, president of the National Council of Women, said she believes the effort is worthwhile.

"I am satisfied the government people are sincere when they tell us they appreciate the drafts we send them. They treat us with interest and respect."

Mrs. Steen said a brief on income and estate taxes resulted in the appointment of council treasurer Mrs. S. M. Milne of Winnipeg to the Carter commission on taxation.

Mrs. M. I. Zemans of Calgary, immediate past president of the National Council of Jewish Women, said she believes this sort of thing is a valid role for the clubs though she is less sure how effective it is.

Results apart, the question is also how likely a brief on estate taxes is to draw and hold an ordinary member. Mrs. A. K. Richardson of Toronto, an IOOE past president, said she doesn't think the average member cares or even knows of such work.

"You join because your friends join. I don't think in small towns members even read headlines about a club's national activities. I don't think national policy influences membership at all."

"I believe we're not going ahead as fast as we could because our work is not needed as much as it was I don't think there is any problem getting volunteer workers if we give them something to do."

SALAD GO-ALONG

Tear crisp western iceberg lettuce and fresh spinach into bite-size pieces. Toss with herb and garlic dressing. Sprinkle with crumbled cooked bacon and crumbled blue cheese. A delicious go-along for grilled egg salad sandwiches or cream of tomato soup and crusty hot bread.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Punt, 4290 Dieppe Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Diana Marie, to Mr. Douglas Martin Ball, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. V. Phipps, Creston, B.C. The wedding will take place at 8 p.m., Saturday, March 19, in Centennial United Church with Dr. S. J. Parsons officiating. (Campbell Studio)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: We have seat belts in our car and use them faithfully. A relative who lives near us is a frequent passenger. We first hinted, then suggested, and later pleaded with her to use the seat belt but she refuses. Why? I wish you would ask her. All she will tell us is that she would rather not.

We feel morally responsible for those who ride in our car. According to the law we ARE responsible. How far should we go with a person who refuses to protect herself at the expense of our peace of mind?—IRRITATED

Dear Irritated: Since it is your car and your responsibility you have the right to go as far as you wish—like the limit! Tell the relative that you will not allow her to be a passenger in your car unless she agrees to use the seat belt. And make it stick.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 17-year-old girl who needs your help badly. When I was 13 years old my mother took me into her bedroom, shut the door and told me a long, weird story about her past. She said she was a bad girl and described her love affair with another man who didn't marry her. I was the result of that illicit relationship. About a year later she told me the same story, changing some facts and adding some intimate details. This past year she has repeated the story four times. Every time she tells it she makes it more like a chapter in a trashy love magazine. Now I am beginning to suspect that she imagined the whole thing.

The man I thought was my father died when I was 11 years old. I loved him very much. I

80th Birthday Party

There was a loyal family gathering in Holyrood House when a surprise dinner was held in honor of Mrs. Stella Charters, who celebrated her 80th birthday recently.

Mrs. Charters was born Stella Fraser of Woolsey, Man. The Fraser family moved to Happy Valley. She married William B. Charters of the Sooke pioneer family. Relatives attending the party were Mrs. Nellie Carlow and son, Robert, of Sooke; Mr. and Mrs. Byron Charters, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Charters, Mrs. Bruce Charters, Glen Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Carlow, Invermere; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Carlow, Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. L. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Strong, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cains, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cains, Mr. and Mrs. Willfred Strong, and Miss Evelyn Strong, all of Sooke. Mr. William Charters, her eldest son, was unable to attend.

There were six great-grandchildren attending the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. Byron Charters proposed a toast to his mother and presented a gift from the relatives.

Mrs. S. Charters, a charter member of the Sooke and North Sooke Women's Institute, is a former member of that group.

It was the original Charters family that gave the site for the present Sooke school.

In the year 1910 William Charters and W. E. Fraser erected a small sawmill on Sooke Inlet on the northeast side of the Harry Jordan Helgesen Oyster Farm. In the beginning it took little of their time and attention for they are listed in an early directory as blacksmith and farmer respectively. However, the First World War brought a certain degree of prosperity to the undertaking and the mill operated throughout the twenties under the management of William Bell Charters, the son of the pioneer settler and the late husband of Mrs. Stella Charters. She was married in the early 1900's and moved to 1925 Ash Street in 1932.

By PETER TAYLOR
NANAIMO—A plea for a re-discovery of elementary education was made by Dr. Walter Worth, Wednesday at the high school.

"The kinds of experiences that a child has in the early years are the major determinants of his subsequent school career," Dr. Worth said.

The doctor, head of the department of elementary education at the University of Alberta at Edmonton, was the keynote speaker at a one-day teachers' workshop.

He saw four bits on the B.C. scene which could be remedied to throw more money in the direction of elementary education.

"There is not a single educational jurisdiction in which the annual expenditure per pupil at the elementary level equals the expenditure at the secondary level.

"The least well qualified teachers are employed at the elementary level.

"The highest pupil-teacher ratio prevails at the elementary level.

"Provincial government grants for school-operated kindergartens cover only one half of the essential operating expenses."

Dr. Worth maintained the prestige hierarchy in education is inverted, and its reversal is imperative in the years ahead.

He urged teachers never to lose sight of the central purpose of elementary education.

"That of nurturing the special characteristics and unique strengths of each individual child."

He had six propositions why elementary education is of primary importance:

● The most rapid growth in stable characteristics occurs in early years.

● Variations in environment have greatest effect on a characteristic during its most rapid period of growth.

● Early learnings are difficult to alter or replace.

● Human development is a sequential process.

● Environment is the major determinant of school achievement.

● Future school achievement can be predicted with increasing accuracy.

"What needs to be done so that redress will lead to a renaissance in elementary education?" Dr. Worth asked.

"There are three partial answers. Number one is developing a dedicated teaching force."

"Dedication is not a characteristic of all members of the elementary teaching force anymore than it is a characteristic of all medical practitioners or lawyers."

"But because teaching in the elementary school is a contingent or secondary occupation for many, dedication is sometimes a difficult attribute to cultivate."

However, Dr. Worth had a conclusion, which he said has been backed up by many social scientists:

"The greater the sense of dedication in the occupational group, the higher the degree of professional status accorded the group and its activities by society."

Second answer to bring about an elementary school renaissance is extending school services downward.

He called for greater emphasis on kindergartens.

Dr. Worth said British and Scandinavian studies have shown "a child of five now is in all physical and probably a good many psychological respects equivalent to a child of six, 30 years ago."

Barnett Outlines Fallout Problem to Commons

Smog Nightmare Stalks Island

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — A community where the grass has turned white, no flowers grow and salmon die in the water... this is not a dream of the future, but an MP's picture of present-day Port Alice.

The shocking description came from MP Tom Barnett, telling the House of Commons of the ravages of pollution on Vancouver Island.

"If the federal government can spend $1,700,000 on research for pulp and paper mills, why can't it spend more money on pollution control?" he asked.

SAUVE QUERIED

Mr. Barnett, New Democratic from Comox-Alberni, put sharp questions to Forestry Minister Sauve.

Pollution fighters here learned Mr. Barnett took the smog problem up in debate on provision of the large amount of money for extension of a research laboratory for use of the Pulp and Paper Institute.

Said Mr. Sauve: "In 1956, the federal government provided funds for construction and equipment of a new laboratory."

UNIVERSITY

"The Pulp and Paper Institute pays for the research and personnel. We only provide the facilities, the buildings."

Research, done by McGill University in conjunction with the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, is exclusively for development of the pulp and paper industry but is profitable for the forestry department, Mr. Sauve stated.

Mr. Barnett said it was in the same year, 1956, that he first raised the question of research into pollution of water and air by the pulp and paper industry.

"I take it from what the minister has said that this project does not cover that area of activity (pollution)?"

Mr. Barnett stated he had questioned Mr. Sauve recently about activity in the pollution field.

Responsibility lay within the jurisdiction of another department, according to Mr. Sauve, said Mr. Barnett.

He continued: "I feel it is proper to ask whether any portion of the funds we are voting is being directed toward commercial oyster operation un-economical."

Cndr. Barnes complained his trouble with the Crofton pulp mill started in 1958 when the operation began.

Crofton Ratepayers Pollution Control Committee asked North Cowichan council Wednesday whether departments of health and agriculture have conducted any pollution surveys of the Alberni, and what were the results?

The committee has asked what effect mill fallout has on humans, water, farm animals.

TRY PROMISED

The council will try to get the information for the rate-payers.

"How often are local waters inspected in regard to pollution by effluent discharge, chip spillage and oil and chemical spillage?" asked the committee.

Acting Reeve Reginald Clegg said the case of Crofton oyster grower Cndr. G. B. Barnes versus the Crofton pulp mill will come up in B.C. Supreme Court at Vancouver, March 21.

Cndr. Barnes last April charged "cumulative effect of chemical effluents and other matter from the mill into Stuart Channel has rendered the com-

New-Type Canadian Envisaged by Author

By HAROLD MORRISON
LONDON (CP)—Layard Dickson, author, publisher and self-styled Canadian exile, sees a new type of Canadian emerging from regional and racial differences—"someone distinct from the Americans and very distinct from the British."
This composite man, whom Dickson visualized after a two-month "revelation" tour of Canada, is "someone square, reliable, solid, shy, inarticulate, someone in the last analysis very obstinate and difficult to move."
And he sees a new and distinctive type developing in the West—the westerner who "is going to play a decisive part in the building work that still has to be done on the Canadian nation."
Dickson's views, outlined in a two-part series published in The Times recently, are those of an eminent literary figure who has lived here for the last 35 years, but was born in Australia and raised in Canada and still considers himself a Canadian. Now 63 and a director of the Macmillan publishing firm, Dickson's last major job in Canada was as a lecturer in English at the University of Alberta in 1927-28.
With thoughts of his ancestors having settled in the rich Minas basin of Nova Scotia 200 years before, Dickson made his cross-country Canadian journey with grim concern whether Canada would be able to survive the quarrel between English and French and between regions. He concludes "the Canadian is there to stay."
All the noises that might be taken "to indicate the impending dissolution of Canada might instead be the sounds of a people laboring in the pangs of a nation's birth," he says.
"It is a big country, but it is a single country, conscious of itself, its place, its future."
Patriotism had never left the Canadian mind—"his loyalty was directed towards his province," Dickson maintains. "It was only when Confederation became anti-American that his patriotic fervor was aroused."
"Another failure"
The racial split results from "failure" by English and French elements to settle, after 100 years, how the two races can live together and become one. But equally suddenly, says Dickson, Canada was confronted by another failure—"the failure of Britain to nourish the link linking British North America to this island at the centre of the Anglo-Saxon world."
But out of the problems and the groping for solutions will come "a spiritual experience" that has been missing from Canadian history so far. There will have to be a constitutional change—"Quebec makes that quite necessary"—but there is hope, says Dickson, that the stress and strain will bring the provinces and the races together "in a new unity."

New Breakfasts Will Tempt Morning-Bolters

By SALLY RYAN
NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. breakfast food industry is taking off in hot, toasted and freeze-dried pursuit after the millions of Americans who bolt out the door without eating much in the morning.
Armed with statistics from the U.S. department of agriculture showing that one out of two Americans leaves home without an adequate breakfast, food processors have developed new, quick and easy to fix, to expand their market.
It is expected to run $650,000,000 this year for hot and cold cereal alone.
The new products are designed for motorists who are spending more time in their cars commuting.
The exodus to suburbia with the resulting traffic jams and the growing complexities of just getting about have helped break down breakfast.
Marketing Research Council of America studies show breakfast is the least popular meal of the day.
The food industry is trying to build it back up with a pre-cooked, instant bacon, instant omelet, instant oatmeal and even a canned liquid called "instant breakfast."
There are frozen waffles, cinnamon buns, corn sticks and tarts to pop in the toaster.
ICE CREAM
You can pour cream over a bowl of cornflakes and listen to the freeze-dried bananas—or blueberries or strawberries—reconstitute, without taking time to peel or slice the fruit.
And if your breakfast problems are with small ones who won't eat anything but ice cream, well, the food people have thought of that, too.
They have a cereal containing bits of freeze-dried ice cream (vanilla, orange or strawberry), just waiting for some milk.

Plants Breed True

By M. V. CHESNUT

Propagation by sexual means, whether in plants, animals or humans, must always be something of a gamble. There is always the chance of a runt in a litter of pups, no matter how carefully the blood lines of the parents have been chosen, and by the same token, a child may turn out to be a genius, or a seedling plant may have superior qualities not found in either parent.

Where plants have it over people, though, is the fact that they can be propagated vegetatively by cuttings or division. The new plant, in this case, is not a child of the parent plant but an actual physical extension of that plant, with all its original characteristics, and when a plant with superior qualities turns up in a batch of seedlings, we can keep it going indefinitely and even multiply it. It would be wonderful if we could snap the little finger off a Beethoven or an Einstein and grow ourselves an army of composers and mathematicians.

It is thanks to this business of vegetative propagation that we are able to enjoy, in our own gardens, that Beethoven among trees, Koster's Blue Spruce. This plant turned up, by the greatest good fortune, in a seed bed of a nursery operated by a Mr. Koster, who had the keen eye and the training to recognize a good thing when he saw it. This was a chance in a million, for while the ordinary blue spruce can be grown from seed, few of the trees come blue at all and even the best of the seedlings are nothing like as blue as Kosteriana. Not only that, but the Koster spruce has a neat and symmetrical habit of growth, ideal for a lawn specimen tree.

These "superplants" are found in a number of different ways. Some come by chance in a batch of seedlings, some are bred on purpose, others are found as sports and, occasionally, some are found in quiet corners where they have been blushing unseen for many years.

One of these is the blue-foliated rue, Ruta graveolens Jackson's Blue Beauty. This was found by a Mr. Rowland Jackson growing in the tiny cottage garden of an English farm laborer. He asked for some cuttings, propagated a stock of plants, and Blue Beauty has now become the most admired form of this aromatic shrub-like herb. It makes a two-foot bush, neat and compact, with opalescent blue leaves; the yellow blossoms are no great shakes and are usually picked off.

There are other qualities that make a plant worthy of a special name in addition to leaf color. The Perennys, for instance, is valued particularly for the beauty of its berries, and the form known as Bell's Seedling stands head and shoulders above its fellows. The berries are bigger and shinier and the red is redder than run-of-the-mill Perennys.

This is true also of Pyracantha "Eddie's Coral" found in the Vancouver nursery of the late H. M. Eddie. This one has shinier leaves than other Fire-thorns, with better-colored berries and more of them; moreover, they stay on the plant almost all winter.

Even the humble Periwinkle has its superior form—Vince minor Bowles' variety, named for a great English gardener, Mr. E. A. Bowles. The flowers are a better blue than in the common plant, but what is probably more important, Bowles' periwinkle keeps on blooming all summer long, from April to October.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Liz, Dick Return to Rome

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — It's like the old days of Cleopatra in Rome where Elizabeth Taylor is preparing for the Taming of the Shrew with Richard Burton. Her dressing room at the De Laurentis studio is even more grand and expensive than the elegant set of rooms they built for her the last time around at Cinecittà. Her own kitchen, good paintings, across-the-wall mirrors in the living room, Elizabeth, obviously a traditionalist, asked her secretary-cum-manager, Dick Handley, to try to rent the same house she had before.

She was so happy on the Apollon Way, entertaining Richard, after the departure of Eddie Fisher, of course, and she wants to recapture the ecstasy. She also hopes to hire the same chauffeur to whom she gave an expensive American car when "Cleo" was finally canned. The only thing she doesn't want to repeat are the paparazzi, who have been preparing for her return, ever since she left. They used to crouch in the trees with their long telescopes hoping to catch Liz taking a bath or something. And you know how they gossip in Rome.

Well, they are saying already that Zeffirelli will never finish the picture and that Richard will have to, I say, give them all a chance; and why should Richard want to direct the "Shrew" when he is in partnership with Zeffirelli? So is Miss Taylor... I'm sure they will all love each other. Anyway, excitement has returned again to the Via Veneto. The lights that were dimmed after Elizabeth and Richard left, "never to return," are twinkling brightly again.

Jane Fonda, having lost three pounds and her chicken-pox, is blown up a bit—the reaction from the penicillin shots. Warners will have to delay Any Wednesday until Jane recovers.

Here's something new. A TV game as a feature movie, with the audience in the theatre trying to guess the answers with the panelists on the screen. This is Bob Stewart's project for The Name Game, and he is hoping to land Piper Laurie as the star. Stewart is the producer of Bill Callen's Eye Guess.

With income-tax blues just around the bend, Bob Hope bought "Dear Deductible" from Raphael Blau for his Chrysler Theatre show, to be seen around the middle of next month.

Anthony Quinn, who had hoped to live in Hollywood, now that he is married and all to Yolanda, will be hopping from Mr. Innocent, in Florida, to 25 Hours, in France.

ART BUCHWALD Hears Zemululu's Woes

Africa's Odd Man In

WASHINGTON — The Prime Minister of Zemululu was in Washington last week, and as the leader of the only democracy left in Africa, he has been very much criticized in diplomatic circles and at the United Nations.

I was fortunate to have a few moments alone with him. "Sir, how do you explain the fact that you are the only democracy left in Africa?"

"I have a weak army," he said sadly. "I'm sorry to hear that," I said. "That is one of the reasons I have come to the United States."

Sydney Harris

The death of Somerset Maugham, not long ago, reminded me that never again during his long life did he equal the artistic success of his early novel, Of Human Bondage, which seemed to have been written at a deeper level than his later work.

One of the reasons may have been the large autobiographical element in the book; Maugham himself, as you may know, had attended medical school, planning to be a doctor—and Of Human Bondage drew largely upon this experience.

It is singular how many literary men have been doctors, or on their way to becoming one, when their careers became derailed in writing. The pre-eminent example, of course, is the great playwright, Chekov, who once said that "Medicine is my wife, and writing is my mistress."

Arthur Conan Doyle began penning his Sherlock Holmes stories while waiting for patients as a new doctor; his practice languished, but his stories caught on, and he soon gave up medicine entirely. Sherlock Holmes, indeed, is generally believed to have been Bell, who taught Doyle in medical school.

Both Keates and Shelley were headed toward medicine when they turned instead to poetry, much to the benefit of English literature. The contemporary American poet, William Carlos Williams, was a practicing physician all his life, combining the two careers with unusual adeptness.

Oliver Goldsmith, Charles Darwin, John Locke, Havelock Ellis, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Zane Gray, James Joyce, Gertrude Stein, Robinson Jeffers,

I hope to get military aid so I can beef up my armed forces. Once the army is strong enough, I'm sure they'll want to overthrow the government. Then I can retire to Switzerland. The climate in my country is abominable."

"Mr. Prime Minister, there has been much criticism of your form of government in international circles. No one can understand how a country of your size and your potential can still allow free elections and permit opposition parties to flourish."

"What people don't realize is that we're a young nation that was under colonial rule for a very long time. We would welcome military rule in a minute if we knew how to achieve it."

"We haven't chosen freedom because we wanted it. At the time it seemed the only way out of our dilemma. Someday, when we get on our feet, we hope to have a dictatorship like every one else in Africa, but it takes time."

"In your inauguration speech of 1965 you promised to do away with free elections and to exile all the opposition parties. Why haven't you fulfilled these promises?"

"Because, if I did that, I would be playing into the hands of the opposition. There is nothing the opposition wants more than to be exiled. The climate in my country is something fierce."

"Mr. Prime Minister, one of the big fears in the West is that in a democracy such as yours there is always a chance of a Communist takeover. This is one of the reasons why the West feels much more secure with a military dictatorship. What guarantees do we have that under your system the Communists won't win an election?"

"We've tried to get the Communists to take over, but they've refused. They keep saying, 'Who wants to rule a country with such an unhealthy climate?'"

"What do you see in the future for Zemululu?"

"We have to produce a strong officer corps which will become disinterested very easily. It is

Great Gold Robbery One Smooth Operation

'I Loaded Some Gold For Them'

WINNIPEG (CP) — "We joked about the weather and the weight of the boxes—just making everyday small talk."

And before three TransAir employees knew what had happened, two men had driven away with an estimated $400,000 worth of gold in a stolen Air Canada truck. (See Page 15.)

"They definitely knew what they were doing," added Glen Shrimpton, 34, one of the three men who had unloaded a gold-bearing DC-3 aircraft after it landed at Winnipeg International Airport Tuesday night from Red Lake, Ont.

"I wasn't at all suspicious," Shrimpton told reporters. A ramp crew lead hand, he was in charge of removing freight from the cargo compartment of the aircraft.

C. E. Waters, 21, a TransAir traffic clerk, had been in charge of handling over the gold shipment to Air Canada freight personnel.

He had been in the cockpit of the aircraft "keeping my eyes on the shipment" when the two men drove up. They were dressed in ramp crew clothing.

"This was the first gold shipment I had to handle but everything seemed to be in order—like any other freight operation," Waters said.

"At first, when I heard the gold was missing, I naturally thought it was a slight

Guerrillas Attack Marines

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas Wednesday heavily engaged U.S. marines near Hue. The two marine companies were in an area long held by the Viet Cong.

Heavy fighting was under way at last reports from the area, 400 miles north of Saigon.

The U.S. 8th Cavalry, meanwhile, captured 33 guerrillas in caves near Bon Son, 300 miles northeast of Saigon. The caves yielded a cache of ammunition.

South Vietnamese forces broke two Viet Cong ambushes near Pleiku, 240 miles north of Saigon.

The Viet Cong attacked a Shell Oil Co. tanker 16 miles south of Saigon today, set it afire and forced it aground in the Long Tao Ship Canal, American sources reported.

Details of the attack were not immediately available. It was not known if the ship hit a mine or was hit by fire from the shore.

One of North Viet Nam's new fleet of MIG-21 jets made the first attack by this advanced Soviet plane on an American aircraft two weeks ago, reliable sources disclosed today.

The U.S. plane, an unarmed reconnaissance U-2, used its superior altitude capability to escape the North Vietnamese fighter, the sources said.

Red Ships Held After Fire

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Turkish authorities Wednesday ordered two Russian ships to remain in port here pending investigation into a multi-million dollar fire caused by an oil leak from one of the vessels, sources said.

The fire, which did an estimated $3,000,000 damage to the waterfront district, was brought under control early Wednesday morning. Firemen were still patrolling the area to prevent a new blaze.

The fire is believed to have started when a lighted cigarette was tossed over the sea from the Russian freighter Latak. The tanker was held in a collision with the Russian freighter Krasny Otkryt in the Bosphorus Straits Tuesday.

Unknown Energy Sources Still Hidden in Nature?

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists Wednesday reported the discovery that two exploding galaxies far away in the universe are fantastically powerful X-ray sources so powerful they raise the question whether there are energy sources in nature not yet imagined by man.

The discovery, a historic "first" in the annals of astronomy, was announced by Dr. Herbert Friedman, chief of the E. O. Hulbert centre for space research at the Naval Research Laboratory here.

It has been assumed for years that the ultimate source of energy in the universe is thermonuclear fusion, the reaction which lights the sun and other stars and made the H-bomb possible.

This may still be true. But by some calculations the energy

Exploding Galaxies Offer Hint

greater than their radio power. The Milky Way galaxy produces X-rays at a power level 10,000 times greater than the energy output, including light and heat, of the sun.

X-ray astronomy is only four years old, an infant compared with optical astronomy, which is almost as old as civilization itself, and radio astronomy, which is still in its "teens."

Dr. Friedman and his NRL colleagues, Drs. E. T. Bryman and T. A. Chubb, have discovered that 25 X-ray sources with instruments fired above the earth's atmosphere by Aerobee rockets. Most of these have yet to be correlated with any visible object in the sky. Most of them also appear to be well inside the 100 billion-star Milky Way.

Wednesday's news was that an NRL rocket flight in April, 1965, disclosed two X-ray sources far outside the Milky Way galaxy.

The problem is further complicated by the fact that X-ray power from sources thus far studied is 10 to 100 times put a similar question to the prime minister.

"My honorable friend will be disappointed when I say no," Mr. Pearson replied.

Then Tory leader Diefenbaker tried, phrasing the question differently.

"During the course of the investigation, and during the last few months, has the government received a letter from Spencer setting forth his side of the case and, in that letter, giving a great, great deal of information?"

Malaysia and Indonesia Summit Talk Subjects

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Philippines government is "taking steps" to arrange a meeting between President Marcos of the Philippines, President Sukarno of Indonesia and Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia to end the three-year-old confrontation conflict between Indonesia and Malaysia, Radio Jakarta said today.

The radio, in a broadcast monitored here, described the planned talks as a summit meeting and said it "should take place soon in Manila (The Philippines) or any other country agreed to by all the leaders."

It said President Marcos' special envoy, Modesto Farolan, now in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, discussing the readiness of Tunku Abdul Rahman to attend such a meeting.

Radio Jakarta did not say whether Sukarno has agreed to attend a summit meeting. But observers here said the fact that the news was carried by the official Indonesian government radio suggests the Indonesian president is prepared to attend.

He demanded that they be tabbed for all MPs to see. Mr. Pearson did not reply.

Outside the Commons, a spokesman for the prime minister said the first letter could not be made public on the ground of national security. The other one—the "Thank-you note"—may be.

Winch complained that he asked the RCMP from 11 a.m. Monday to 5 p.m. and they denied they knew where Spencer was.

Revolt Raging New Ridings Irk Socreds

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Saanich MLA John Tisdalle confirmed Wednesday that a revolt is raging in the Socred ranks about the government's redistribution bill.

He said he thinks the only way the party rift can be patched is for the government to amend its own bill.

"That is the only hope for getting harmony back in the House," the Socred MLA said in a corridor interview.

Mr. Tisdalle declined to say how many backbenchers are against the bill.

But he was one of five backbenchers who had applauded opposition charges Tuesday that the government was discriminating against the Kootenays.

The others were Arvid Lundell (Revelstoke), Donald Robinson (Lillooet), Ernie LeCours (delta) and James Chabot (Columbia).

A five-hour debate had been adjourned by Highways Minister Gagliardi Tuesday after Mr. Chabot—the first of the above five members to speak—told the House he could not support the bill unless three seats were restored to the Kootenays.

The bill could still pass by a 27 to 23 majority if it is supported by 26 Socreds and New Democrat MLA Frank Calder, and opposed by 13 New Democrats, five Liberals and five Socreds.

But it would represent the most serious party split ever faced by Premier Bennett since he came to power in 1952. And Mr. Gagliardi's adjournment was seen as a means of heading off the revolt until such time as the problem could be settled in the Socred caucus room.

Stands of the other Socreds who indicated opposition to the bill will not be known until debate is resumed on the second reading of the bill.

But Mr. Tisdalle said Wednesday that the government could amend its bill during third reading in the House and that

Rebellion Hits West Assam

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — The extremist Mizo National Front claimed Wednesday its forces have taken control of the Mizo Hills in West Assam and declared independence from New Delhi, an Indian news agency reported.

The agency said reports reaching Shillong government headquarters indicated armed Mizo tribesmen had occupied all civil administrative offices in the hill district except at Aijal following a series of terrorist raids Tuesday night and Wednesday.

The Spencer case fired a lively exchange between Carlin and the New Democrat MP for Vancouver, Harold Winch, who had been out in Vancouver trying to contact Spencer.

Tories Pour In Questions

Pearson Admits Letters from Spencer

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA The existence of two letters from spy-case suspect Victor Spencer to the government was pried out of Prime Minister Pearson in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson said the first was received many months ago. In it, Spencer "explained his own improper conduct."

The second, addressed to "to whom it may concern" was received some weeks ago.

It thanked the RCMP and others for courtesy and consideration during difficult months, Mr. Pearson said.

The government was again pounded with questions about Spencer, who was fired as a postal employee for his role in a sensational spy case last year.

Both Tory leader Diefenbaker and trouble-shooter Erik Nielsen asked about the existence of letters.

Earlier at a secret caucus of the Liberal parliamentary group, Mr. Pearson had admitted the existence of the letters.

He had also tried to reassure party members who are concerned about the government's refusal to allow a judicial inquiry into the case.

If there was any kind of complaint from Spencer about the treatment he had received, there would have to be a judicial inquiry, Mr. Pearson is reported to have said.

In the Commons, Erik Nielsen tried unsuccessfully to get

the government to admit the existence of the Spencer letters.

First, he asked Justice Minister Carlin.

"Has the justice minister received any recent communication from Victor Spencer that would constitute further evidence in support of a judicial hearing, as demanded by the opposition in this House?"

"No," Mr. Carlin replied. A few minutes later, Nielsen

Port Alice Becomes Smog Nightmare

Barnett Tells Commons of Pollution

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — A community where the grass has turned white, no flowers grow and salmon die in the water... this is not a dream of the future, but an MP's picture of present-day Port Alice.

The shocking description came from MP Tom Barnett, telling the House of Commons of the ravages of pollution on Vancouver Island. "If the federal government can spend $1,700,000 on research for pulp and paper mills, why can't it spend more money on pollution control?" he asked.

SAUVE QUERIED

Mr. Barnett, New Democratic member for Comox-Alberni, put sharp questions to Forestry Minister Sauve.

Pollution fighters here learned Mr. Barnett took the smog problem up in debate on provision of the large amount of money for extension of a research laboratory for use of the Pulp and Paper Institute.

Said Mr. Sauve: "In 1956, the federal government provided funds for construction and equipment of a new laboratory."

UNIVERSITY

"The Pulp and Paper Institute pays for the research and personnel. We only provide the facilities, the buildings."

Research, done by McGill University in conjunction with the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, is exclusively for development of the pulp and paper industry but is profitable for the forestry department, Mr. Sauve stated.

Mr. Barnett said it was in the same year, 1956, that he first raised the question of research into pollution of water and air by the pulp and paper industry, at the time the first funds were allotted.

OTHER DEPARTMENT

"I take it from what the minister has said that this project does not cover that area of activity (pollution)?"

Mr. Barnett stated he had questioned Mr. Sauve recently about activity in the pollution field.

Responsibility lay within the jurisdiction of another department, according to Mr. Sauve, said Mr. Barnett.

AIR, WATER

He continued: "I feel it is proper to ask whether any portion of the funds we are voting is being directed toward research into the control of pollution. Much of our economic prosperity will derive from the better utilization of our forest products, but this industry is one of the greatest creators of pollution of our air and water."

Referring to the coming conference arranged under the auspices of the council of resource ministers for the fall, Mr. Barnett went on: "... but if we are providing this assistance for research, it justifies directing, urging or demanding that the industry devote more time, energy and interest to the field of research in the control of pollution."

EXAMPLES

Port Alice and Port Alberni were singled out by Mr. Barnett as prime examples of areas where pollution problems are rampant.

In Port Alice, he said, "The grass has turned white, the flowers no longer grow and water in the inlet where the plant is located has become so polluted that people can no longer catch salmon in it."

He referred to Port Alberni as "up in arms" about the situation, bringing in the huge petition signed by over 6,500 people and the protest parade. Pictures showing the so-called black plague that affected the valley in the winter months were passed around for the members' inspection.

Bylaw Supported

DUNCAN — Full support was given to North Cowichan's $700,000 composite recreation bylaw by Duncan, North Cowichan and South Cowichan recreation commissions, Wednesday.

Pollution Questioned

NORTH COWICHAN — Pollution from Crofton pulp mill is bringing questions from ratepayers.

Crofton Ratepayers Pollution Control Committee asked North Cowichan council Wednesday whether departments of health and agriculture have conducted any pollution surveys of the Alberni, and what were the results?

The committee has asked what effect mill fallout has on humans, water, farm animals.

TRY PROMISED

The council will try to get the information for the ratepayers.

"How often are local waters inspected in regard to pollution by effluent discharge, chip spillage and oil and chemical spillage?" asked the committee. Acting Reeve Reginald Clegg said the case of Crofton oyster

Duncan's New Hospital Progressing

Chronic Unit Considered

DUNCAN — The new $4,000,000 Cowichan district hospital is 25 per cent complete, and serious thought is being given to the planning of the proposed chronic care hospital.

Claude Green, re-elected for seventh time Wednesday as chairman of King's Daughters Hospital board, gave this information in his annual report.

Speaking to Cowichan District Hospital Association, which administers the hospital, he commented "it is still the hope of the board that the chronic care hospital will be planned and constructed by the time the acute hospital is completed."

Recalling the anxious moments when bids were $600,000 higher than estimated, he said, "people saw fit once again to give us an overwhelming mandate to get on and finish the job."

Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn's report said the hospital's operating surplus in 1965 amounted to $14,565.

Hospital administrator Ken Nelson said "the number of newborn babies decreased four per cent, in keeping with the general trend throughout the country."

A total of 517 major operations and 3,490 minor operations were performed during the past year. He said during 1965, 33 children three years old and younger were treated for poisoning. Total in 1964 was 42.

Nanaimo Plugged

Snow? Ridiculous!

By REA HAMILTON

FULFORD — It was a white beginning to March for Salt Spring Island residents, with the snowfall varying from six inches to two feet.

Fulford got six to eight inches, while a resident a few miles up Burgoyne Valley said "It's up to my knees!"

Said Claude Hamilton, who has been on Salt Spring Island since 1897, "we always get some snow in March, but this is ridiculous!"

School bus runs were cancelled. Snow shovels took over. Power and telephone services were briefly disrupted.

Gondoliers Sing Tonight

DUNCAN — Gilbert and Sullivan's Gondoliers will sing their way across the stage of the Cowichan High School auditorium 8.15 p.m. tonight.

The Duncan musical club's 1966 production will be repeated Friday and Saturday with the same curtain time.

The local cast will be supported by singers from various Island points with one of the main characters from Vancouver.

LAKE COWICHAN — School trustees have drafted a letter to the RCMP asking for a crackdown on drivers passing school buses when the red lights are flashing.

Lake Cowichan trustees will be represented at both UBC and University of Victoria during trustee days March 14 and 15, to meet students in the education branch who may be entering the teaching profession this year.

The school board agreed to support the International Children's Village, to be held in Denmark this year.

Centennial medallions will be presented to all Lake Cowichan school children during Education Week March 7 to 11. Fifteen classes in adult education will put on a display of their work March 9. The superintendent, A. E. Clode will attend a conference at UBC March 25.

Children Attacked

NANAIMO — Lunches are being stolen, small children are being knocked to the ground; the school board is worried.

The board knows who is responsible, but the problem is still difficult to deal with.

The culprits are dogs. Jim McPherrin, district secretary-treasurer, said the board is concerned about the growing public nuisance created in school areas by dogs permitted to run unrestricted.

Kelly Famed Cleric Is Dead

NANAIMO — Famous Indian cleric Dr. Peter Kelly of Nanaimo died Wednesday at Nanaimo Regional General Hospital.

Dr. Kelly, prominent spokesman for his people, was stricken Jan. 14, and had been ill from then until his death. He died at the age of 86.

He was a United Church missionary to the Haidas.

Elementary Teachers Are Least Qualified

Rediscovery of Primary Education Imperative, Nanaimo Conference Told

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO — A plea for a rediscovery of elementary education was made by Dr. Walter Worth, Wednesday at the high school.

"The kinds of experiences that a child has in the early years are the major determiners of his subsequent school career," Dr. Worth said.

The doctor, head of the department of elementary education at the University of Alberta at Edmonton, was the keynote speaker at a one-day teachers' workshop.

He saw hour blots on the B.C.

scene which could be remedied to throw more money in the direction of elementary education.

"There is not a single educational jurisdiction in which the annual expenditure per pupil at the elementary level equals the expenditure at the secondary level."

"The least well qualified teachers are employed at the elementary level."

"The highest pupil-teacher ratio prevails at the elementary level."

"Provincial government grants for school-operated kindergartens cover only one half of the essential operating expenses."

Dr. Worth maintained the prestige hierarchy in education is inverted, and its reversal is imperative in the years ahead.

He urged teachers never to lose sight of the central purpose of elementary education. "That of nurturing the special characteristics and unique strengths of each individual child."

He had six propositions why elementary education is of primary importance:

● The most rapid growth in stable characteristics occurs in early years.

● Variations in environment have greatest effect on a characteristic during its most rapid period of growth.

● Early learnings are difficult to alter or replace.

● Human development is a sequential process.

High principal J. O. Swan; Federation president R. G. Kasen, workshop chairman J. B. Litch.

● Environment is the major determinant of school achievement.

● Future school achievement can be predicted with increasing accuracy.

"What needs to be done so that rediscovery will lead to a renaissance in elementary education?" Dr. Worth asked. "There are three partial answers."

"Number one is developing a dedicated teaching force."

"Dedication is not a characteristic of all members of the elementary teaching force anymore than it is a characteristic of all medical practitioners or lawyers."

"But because teaching in the elementary school is a contingent or secondary occupation for many, dedication is sometimes a difficult attribute to cultivate."

However, Dr. Worth had a conclusion, which he said has been backed up by many social scientists:

"The greater the sense of dedication in the occupational group, the higher the degree of professional status accorded the group and its activities by society."

Second answer to bring about an elementary school renaissance is extending school services downward.

He called for greater emphasis on kindergartens.

Dr. Worth said British and Scandinavian studies have shown "a child of five now is in all physical and probably a good many psychological respects equivalent to a child of six, 30 years ago."

Port Council Keeps Purse Closed Tight

Thain Suggests Answer to CBC Relay Station Problem, Back Up Letter of Intent

PORT ALBERNI — Council is sticking to its decision not to set a precedent by giving financial support to the various organizations, which send in requests at almost every meeting.

Last month requests for assistance were received from the Old Age Pensioners Association for monetary help with their recreational program, and from the Community Arts Council for a grant towards costs of the arts festival planned for three days in May. Both requests were referred to the committee of the whole for study, and both have been denied.

A request from the horsemen's group, sponsoring a horse show June 13 and 14 as a centennial event, was also turned down.

The horsemen had asked for a $25 grant to take care of first prize for one of the events at the show, which will be their centennial project.

Although council turned down the requests for financial assistance, it was suggested some other way might be found to aid the applicants.

After much deliberation, the commission had also decided to call for applications for the position of recreation program supervisor. The position would entail organizing and directing public recreation programs under direction of recreation director Duncan Russell.

"We have loaded Mr. Russell with administrative duties to a point beyond coping with all the recreational activities too," Mr. Lyon said. "This is a move that is due, if not overdue."

Town Business Halted By Noise Beyond Wall

By KLAUS MUENTER
LADYSMITH — Charles Herbert Lumley appeared in court this week.
He was fined $30.
He admitted causing a disturbance in a Ladysmith cafe.
But the disturbance he caused there, was nothing compared to the disturbing effect he had on a Ladysmith Town Council Meeting.

The rattling of jail bars clattered through the council chamber and Mayor Kay Grouhel looked up in desperation.
The council meeting had just come to order.

At about the same time Lumley, 44, of Ladysmith, had been booked.
RCMP jail and the council chamber at the Ladysmith Town Hall are separated by a wall too thin to ignore the rattling of jail bars.
Mr. Lumley grew more angry.

WHAT TO DO?
Mayor Grouhel grew more angry.
She asked "What is one supposed to do?"
Undisturbed by the growing concern in the council chamber, Lumley's bar rattling became louder, more determined.
Mayor Grouhel left the chamber and talked to the RCMP in the adjoining room.

COURTENAY — The flu epidemic that has hit the Lower Mainland has not touched the Comox Valley yet.
Dr. G. A. Gibson, director of the Upper Island Health Unit, said there are two types of viruses in the Vancouver area, and the symptoms of one, a sore throat and cough, have been noted here.
"It would be impossible to say if the other virus would come here."

CARGO EXPORTS rose sharply. Lumber exports amounted to 42,280 tons or 28,186,666 board feet.
Paper exports were 2,712 tons; pulp 10,291 tons; plywood 3,248; shingles 354 tons. The total of 78,885 tons for February was termed "a very good increase" by Capt. Brooks.

OUT HE WENT
Outside the large window, snow drifted through the night. Soon the peaceful scene changed.
Barly RCMP officers heaved Lumley into the police car and with a sigh Mayor Grouhel settled down for a three-hour meeting.
Lumley spent the rest of the night at Chemainus RCMP station.

The cadets had to move in December, 1964 when the minister of national defence announced reorganization of the army.
A monthly trip will be made to the permanent force establishment at Work Point Barracks.

Building continues to be in Port Alberni, as shown by the building inspector's report.

Permits for new construction were up almost $43,000 over last year's February total.

The inspector and Fire Chief Maurice Smith also jointly suggested demolition of another below-par dwelling in their campaign to clean up run-down fire-hazard properties.

The building was described as being in advanced state of dilapidation after the tidal wave 18 months ago.

According to the report, it had been added to at will in unsightly fashion, and required major repairs.

There is no foundation, some flooring being laid almost directly on the ground.

Use of the building as a radiator, body and paint shop on a part-time basis constituted a major fire hazard.

Inadequate chimneys and what the inspector called non-existent housekeeping add to the hazards for the apartments situated east and south and the gas station to the west of the building, it was stated.

Council moved the necessary action be taken to advise the owner the building has been condemned and must be removed.

Great Gold Robbery One Smooth Operation

'I Loaded Some Gold For Them'

WINNIPEG (CP) — "We joked about the weather and the weight of the boxes—just making everyday small talk."

And before three TransAir employees knew what had happened, two men had driven away with an estimated $450,000 worth of gold in a stolen Air Canada truck. (See Page 15.)

"They definitely knew what they were doing," added Glen Shrimpton, 34, one of the three men who had unloaded a gold-bearing DC-3 aircraft after it landed at Winnipeg International Airport Tuesday night from Red Lake, Ont.

"I wasn't at all suspicious," Shrimpton told reporters. A ramp crew lead hand, he was in charge of removing freight from the cargo compartment of the aircraft.

C. E. Waters, 21, a TransAir traffic clerk, had been in charge of handing over the gold shipment to Air Canada freight personnel.

He had been in the cockpit of the aircraft "keeping my eyes on the shipment" when the two men drove up. They were dressed in ramp crew clothing.

"This was the first gold shipment I had to handle but everything seemed to be in order—like any other freight operation," Waters said.

"At first, when I heard the gold was missing, I naturally thought it was a slight

Guerrillas Attack Marines

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas Wednesday heavily engaged U.S. marines near Hue. The two marine companies were in an area long held by the Viet Cong.

Heavy fighting was under way at last reports from the area, 400 miles north of Saigon. The U.S. 5th Cavalry meanwhile captured 33 guerrillas in caves near Bon Son, 300 miles northeast of Saigon. The caves yielded a cache of ammunition.

South Vietnamese forces broke two Viet Cong ambushes near Pleiku, 240 miles north of Saigon.

The Viet Cong attacked a Shell Oil Co. tanker 16 miles south of Saigon today, set it afire and forced it aground in the Long Tao Ship Canal. American sources reported.

Details of the attack were not immediately available. It was not known if the ship hit a mine or was hit by fire from the shore.

One of North Viet Nam's new fleet of MIG-21 jets made the first attack by this advanced Soviet plane on an American aircraft two weeks ago, reliable sources disclosed today.

The U.S. plane, an unarmed reconnaissance U-2, used its superior altitude capability to escape the North Vietnamese fighter, the sources said.

Red Ships Held After Fire

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI)—Turkish authorities Wednesday ordered two Russian ships to remain in port here pending investigation into a multi-million dollar fire caused by an oil leak from one of the vessels, sources said.

The fire, which did an estimated $2,000,000 damage to the waterfront district, was brought under control early Wednesday morning. Firemen were still patrolling the area to prevent a new blaze.

The fire is believed to have started when a lighted cigarette was tossed on an oil slick spreading over the sea from the Russian freighter Lutz. The tanker was holed in a collision with the Russian freighter Krasnyy Okean in the Bosphorus Straits Tuesday.

Unknown Energy Sources Still Hidden in Nature?

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists Wednesday reported the discovery that two exploding galaxies far away in the universe are fantastically powerful X-ray sources so powerful they raise the question whether there are energy sources in nature not yet imagined by man.

The discovery, a historic "first" in the annals of astronomy, was announced by Dr. Herbert Friedman, chief of the E. O. Hulbert centre for space research at the Naval Research Laboratory here.

It has been assumed for years that the ultimate source of energy in the universe is thermonuclear fusion, the reaction which lights the sun and other stars and made the H-bomb possible.

This may still be true. But by some calculations the energy

Exploding Galaxies Offer Hint

greater than their radio power. The Milky Way galaxy produces X-rays at a power level 10,000 times greater than the energy output, including light and heat, of the sun.

X-ray astronomy is only four years old, an infant compared with optical astronomy, which is almost as old as civilization itself, and radio astronomy, which is still in its "teens."

Dr. Friedman and his NRL colleagues, Drs. E. T. Bryman and T. A. Chubb, have discovered about 25 X-ray sources with instruments fixed above the earth's atmosphere by Aerobee rockets. Most of these have yet to be correlated with any visible object in the skies.

Most of them also appear to be well inside the 100 billion-star Milky Way.

Wednesday's news was that an NRL rocket flight in April, 1965, disclosed two X-ray sources far outside the Milky Way galaxy.

put a similar question to the prime minister.

"My honorable friend will be disappointed when I say no," Mr. Pearson replied.

Then Tory leader Diefenbaker tried, phrasing the question differently.

"During the course of the investigation, and during the last few months, has the government received a letter from Spencer setting forth his side of the case and, in that letter, giving a great, great deal of information?"

"No," Mr. Cardin replied. A few minutes later, Nielsen

the government to admit the existence of the Spencer letters.

First, he asked Justice Minister Cardin.

"Has the justice minister received any recent communication from Victor Spencer that would constitute further evidence in support of a judicial hearing, as demanded by the opposition in this House?"

"No," Mr. Cardin replied. A few minutes later, Nielsen group, Mr. Pearson had admitted the existence of the letters.

He had also tried to reassure party members who are concerned about the government's refusal to allow a judicial inquiry into the case.

If there was any kind of complaint from Spencer about the treatment he had received, there would have to be a judicial inquiry, Mr. Pearson is reported to have said.

SEAT PLAN DIVIDES SOCREDS

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Saanich MLA John Tisdalle confirmed Wednesday that a revolt is raging in the Socred ranks about the government's redistribution bill.

He said he thinks the only way the party rift can be patched is for the government to amend its own bill.

"That is the only hope for getting harmony back in the House," the Socred MLA said in a corridor interview.

Mr. Tisdalle declined to say how many backbenchers are against the bill.

But he was one of five backbenchers who had applauded opposition charges Tuesday that the government was discriminating against the Kootenays.

The others were Arvid Lundell (Revelstoke), Donald Robinson (Lillooet), Ernie LeCours (Delta) and James Chabot (Columbia).

A five-hour debate had been adjourned by Highways Minister Gagliardi Tuesday after Mr. Chabot—the first of the above five members to speak—told the House he could not support the bill unless three seats were restored to the Kootenays.

The bill could still pass by a 27 to 23 majority if it is supported by 26 Socreds and New Democrat M.L.A. Frank Calder, and opposed by 13 New Democrats, five Liberals and five Socreds.

But it would represent the most serious party split ever faced by Premier Bennett since he came to power in 1952. And Mr. Gagliardi's adjournment was seen as a means of heading off the revolt until such time as the problem could be settled in the Socred caucus room.

Standards of the other Socreds who indicated opposition to the bill will not be known until debate is resumed on the second reading of the bill.

Rebellion Hits West Assam

CALCUTTA, India (AP)—The extremist Mizo National Front claimed Wednesday its forces have taken control of the Mizo Hills in West Assam and declared independence from New Delhi, an Indian news agency reported.

In New Delhi, a government spokesman called the uprising an extremely dangerous situation, but said Assam civil officials and state police were in control. He said army reinforcements were standing by to move if necessary.

The agency said reports reaching Shillong government headquarters indicated armed Mizo tribesmen had occupied all civil administrative offices in the hill district except at Aizawl following a series of terrorist raids Tuesday night and Wednesday.

The area, densely vegetated, normally is regarded as one of the most inaccessible in the world. In reporting to Parliament, Home Minister Gulzari Lal Nanda said a series of lightning raids Monday night against the state treasuries, an armory and a state security forces camp was carried out by 800 to 1,200 armed Mizo tribesmen.

Tories Pour In Questions

Pearson Admits Letters from Spencer

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The existence of two letters from spy-case suspect Victor Spencer to the government was pried out of Prime Minister Pearson in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson said the first was received many months ago. In it, Spencer "explained his own improper conduct."

The second, addressed to "to whom it may concern," was received some weeks ago,

It thanked the RCMP and others for courtesy and consideration during difficult months, Mr. Pearson said.

The government was again pounded with questions about Spencer, who was fired as a postal employee for his role in a sensational spy case last year.

Both Tory leader Diefenbaker and a trouble-shooter Erik Nielsen asked about the existence of letters.

Earlier at a secret caucus of the Liberal parliamentary group, Mr. Pearson had admitted the existence of the letters.

He had also tried to reassure party members who are concerned about the government's refusal to allow a judicial inquiry into the case.

If there was any kind of complaint from Spencer about the treatment he had received, there would have to be a judicial inquiry, Mr. Pearson is reported to have said.

In the Commons, Erik Nielsen tried unsuccessfully to get

the government to admit the existence of the Spencer letters.

First, he asked Justice Minister Cardin.

"Has the justice minister received any recent communication from Victor Spencer that would constitute further evidence in support of a judicial hearing, as demanded by the opposition in this House?"

"No," Mr. Cardin replied. A few minutes later, Nielsen put a similar question to the prime minister.

"My honorable friend will be disappointed when I say no," Mr. Pearson replied.

Then Tory leader Diefenbaker tried, phrasing the question differently.

"During the course of the investigation, and during the last few months, has the government received a letter from Spencer setting forth his side of the case and, in that letter, giving a great, great deal of information?"

"No," Mr. Cardin replied. A few minutes later, Nielsen

group, Mr. Pearson had admitted the existence of the letters.

He had also tried to reassure party members who are concerned about the government's refusal to allow a judicial inquiry into the case.

In the Commons, Erik Nielsen tried unsuccessfully to get

the government to admit the existence of the Spencer letters.

Mr. Pearson admitted the two letters.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Commons had been given an interpretation of the letters by the prime minister.

He demanded that they be tabled for all MPs to see.

Mr. Pearson did not reply.

Outside the Commons, a spokesman for the prime minister said the first letter could not be made public on the ground of national security. The other one—the "Thank-you note"—may be,

The Spencer case fired a lively exchange between Cardin and the New Democrat MP for Vancouver, Harold Wilch, who had been out in Vancouver trying to contact Spencer.

Wilch complained that he asked the RCMP from 11 a.m. Monday to 5 p.m. and they denied they knew where Spencer was.

"Will the prime minister or the minister of justice tell me whether they know where Mr. Spencer lives?" he asked.

Mr. Cardin replied that he knew that Winch had seen the RCMP in Vancouver.

"How did you know?" Winch snorted.

"... And that the RCMP gave its honorable member's address to Spencer. If Spencer wanted to communicate with him, he was certainly free to do so."

Mr. Cardin claimed that Winch was told that Spencer might in fact want to see him, but that Winch replied that he was returning to Ottawa and Spencer could write him a letter there.

Mr. Winch leapt up and complained again that the RCMP let him go six hours without information about Spencer.

Mr. Cardin's information about his (Winch's) efforts to contact Spencer was not correct.

"I finally received an answer that the RCMP was under surveillance to tell him that I wanted to see him," Winch said.

Callus-Like Skin Problem May Come from Ancestors

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: In my husband's family there is an inherited skin condition. The skin becomes hard, like callus, on the palms of the hands and soles of the feet a few weeks after birth. (It does not spread to other areas.) Usually it is sensitive to cold, and cracks form in the skin.

The condition has been in the family for generations. We suspect it might be a fungus, or perhaps the sweat glands are not developed.

Usually it runs in a pattern whereby the first child has it, the second doesn't, and all others do. Can you suggest treatment?—MRS. R.F.

This is evidence of a form of hyperkeratosis (excessive thickening of the skin), which is, as you describe, an inherited condition. It is not due to fungus.

In some instances, faulty use by the body of Vitamin A may be involved, so Vitamin A has been prescribed as part of the treatment. That, however, is not the chief factor. The real cause is not known.

Your Good Health

Since the thick skin tends to crack, this is painful. In addition, the cracks or fissures may become infected. Therefore, the goal is to keep the skin as soft and as thin as possible. Lanolin and other skin-softening agents are helpful. Salicylic acid (in ointment form) is used to dissolve the thick layer of skin. Treatment, in short, is essentially palliative. No cure can be promised.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking a hormone tablet once a day for menopause, but recently my hot flashes are so severe that I don't get much sleep at

U.S. Super Jet Behind Concorde

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Wednesday the United States hopes to have in commercial service by 1974 a 2,000-mile-an-hour supersonic jet.

This schedule puts the United States about three years behind a British-French combine developing a supersonic transport called the Concorde. If all goes well, the Concorde will be certified for commercial service in 1971.

Johnson said in a transportation message to Congress the U.S. now is pre-eminent in the field of aircraft design and manufacture and "we intend to maintain that leadership."

He requested $200,000,000 for the fiscal year starting July 1 to initiate the prototype phase of the supersonic transport.

This money would cover the cost for the completion of design competition, expanded economic and sonic boom studies and the start of prototype construction.

Johnson said it is hoped to conduct the first test flights of the supersonic transports by 1970.

the impression that I am thinking of going back directly to Accra. I am really on the way back to Ghana."

EQUAL STATUS

President Touré said Nkrumah henceforth is his equal in Guinea and will undertake important responsibilities in the ruling Democratic party and the state.

Touré said he will judge foreign powers by the way they treated the Ghana situation.

"I am not going to say anything against anyone because I understand perfectly well the factors at work in the world today," Nkrumah said.

'NOT SURPRISED'

"What has happened in Algeria has happened in Ghana. We are not surprised. We understand the problems. All we have to do is to stand firm and see how we can counteract these factors. ..."

A military coup last June in Algeria overthrew President Ahmed Ben Bella, another of the leftist African heads of state.

LOVES PEACE

Nkrumah went on: "I did not leave Ghana for nothing. I left Ghana because I love peace. I love Ghana, I love Africa, and I love peace."

He said he had left to help solve the Viet Nam conflict.

"When I got to Peking I heard the news. But if those who were out to govern Africa were men, why did they not do this in my presence, why did they let me leave and then do it behind me?" he asked.

"Because they dared not when I was there," he said.

HELP DOUBTED

In Accra, former Ghana foreign minister Alex Quaison-Sackey Wednesday warned the new military regime that ousted President Nkrumah will seek Communist Chinese and Russian help to power.

Quaison-Sackey voiced the warning at a news conference while under arrest and just hours after his return here from Peking via London.

He immediately endorsed the military coup that ousted Nkrumah and said he doubted "very much whether the Chinese will help him and I don't know about the Russians."

'FRESH WHIFF'

"A fresh whiff of air is blowing in Ghana, a new era has ushered in," he proclaimed.

Quaison-Sackey acknowledged that he was a prisoner of the new regime headed by Lt. Gen. J. A. Ankrah. But he said: "If I am asked to help my state in any capacity I shall do so."

He said Nkrumah was moved when he received the first news of the Accra coup 10 minutes after he arrived in Peking.

"He didn't seem perturbed at all," Quaison-Sackey said. "He didn't act as though anything had happened. He mentioned names of certain army officers he believed were loyal, but later I discovered it was those very officers who had done it."

ROADS TAKE TOLL

Traffic accidents in Japan killed 1,052 people and injured 30,519 in January of this year.

Drug Charge Brings Jail

VANCOUVER (CP) — Walter Hawley, 30, was jailed for three years after being found guilty of possession of narcotics. A further charge of trafficking in heroin was dismissed by magistrate Bernard Isman.

Pool Closed For Diversion

CRANBROOK (CP) — Kootenay National Park officials say the hot pool at Radium Hot Springs will be closed for repairs March 7-16. The water will be diverted into another pool, raising the temperature to an estimated 100 degrees.
